BURGLARS ESCAPE WITH $1,000

Do Expert Work in Maine Central Station at Beecher Falls.

BEECHER FALLS, Vt., Nov. 23.—A band of burglars, well equipped with explosives and safe-breaking implements, entered the Maine Central Station here some time during the night, dynamited two safes, and escaped with more than $1,000 in cash, and without leaving any clue as to their whereabouts or the direction in which they fled. It is believed, however, that they crossed the Canadian boundary.

The break was discovered early today, when Michael Gleason, the station agent, opened the station. One of the safes blown open was the property of the railroad, and contained money received from the sale of tickets and from freight receipts. The other safe belonged to the American Express Company. The doors had been blown off in a skilful manner, and the work had been performed so well that no one in the neighborhood had been aroused by the detonation, although there must have been two separate explosions.

In another part of the station was a large safe belonging to the United States government, and contained customs receipts. Beecher Falls being a port of entry. The burglars evidently overlooked this safe, or were frightened away before they had time to open it, as apparently no attempt had been made to force it.

Investigation showed that entrance to the building had been effected by raising the window of a lavatory. Although it is not known positively at what time the breaks occurred, it is generally believed that the burglars entered the station some time after 1:30 this morning. The burglars did their work so well that not even a pain of glass was broken by the force of the explosion. The contents of the safes were sorted over carefully, and only currency was taken, all checks and drafts being left behind.

All the cash was taken from the safe of the express company, while all but eight pennies was taken from the railroad's strong box. The burglars pried off the combination lock on both safes, and applied the explosives through the opening thus made. The government safe would not have netted them a very large amount, even if they had opened it, as yesterday practically all of the receipts and government funds were shipped to Washington. A posse is in pursuit.

DRAGGING FOR BODY.

Lieutenant Crawford's Disappearance Mystery to Admiral Dewey.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The police authorities today began dragging the Potomac river for the body of Lieutenant John W. Crawford, Admiral Dewey's secretary, who disappeared yesterday and left word that he was about to commit suicide, a letter to this effect having been mailed late yesterday to B. A. Allen, a chief of division in the office of the auditor for the Postoffice Department. The search by the police boat has so far proven fruitless.

Crawford, it is said, left debts aggregating approximately $5,000, and in a note which he sent his wife through Allen, his friend of 20 years' standing he stated explicitly that the indebtedness had accumulated too much, but it was not due to speculation or gambling.

"It's all a mystery to me, and I am greatly shocked," declared Admiral Dewey today, in talking about the disappearance of his secretary. The missing officer left a note on his desk for his wife, which was taken to his home today by Commander Spencer S. Wood, the admiral's aide. Admiral Dewey said Crawford was a man of the best of habits, and that he was a most invaluable assistant. In addition to his official duties, Crawford looked after the admiral's private affairs. Before leaving his office yesterday afternoon Lieutenant Crawford had carefully arranged the papers on his desk, and left everything apparently in the best of order.

Admiral Dewey said Crawford lived modestly, and that his pay was about $3,000 a year. He was prominently identified with the work of the Young Men's Christian Association.

OPENS WITH SONG SERVICE.

Y. M. C. A. Convention Addressed by Watchorn, Cortelyou and Bryan.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Today's session of the international convention of the Young Men's Christian Association opened with a song service.

Robert Watchorn, immigration commissioner at New York, discussed the work of the association among immigrants. There were a number of other speakers, and an open-air meeting this afternoon was addressed by Secretary Cortelyou and W. J. Bryan.

OFFICIAL DISCOURTESY.

Roosevelt Asks Federal Employes to Refrain from Renominating Him.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Roosevelt yesterday addressed a letter to members of his cabinet requesting them to inform federal employes under their jurisdiction to refrain from political activity with the object of the renomination of President Roosevelt. The text of the letter has not been made public, but its contents are substantially as follows:

"I am informed that certain office holders in your department, holding various positions throughout the country, contemplate attending Republican conventions in their respective states and urging the endorsement of myself for the Presidential nomination. I wish that you would direct federal office holders in your department who have such a thing in view that I would regard it as an act of official impropriety and discourtesy."

T. B. FINUCANE RESIGNS.

Independent Telephone Company President Wishes Immediate Action.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 23.—Thomas B. Finucane has tendered his resignation as president of the United States Independent Telephone Company and as chairman of the company's executive committee, to become effective immediately. It is understood that Mr. Finucane gave no reason in his letters for tendering his resignation at this time.

YALE MAKES BUT ONE TOUCHDOWN

Scores Only After Hardest Kind of Work.

Harvard Strong Beneath Her Own Goal Posts.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 23.—When the Harvard-Yale football game was started, this afternoon, there was very little advantage, so far as the wind was concerned, but Yale, winning the toss, chose to let Harvard kick off from the west side of the field, which gave the Crimson a slight advantage. In the line Dunbar played centre for Yale.

Burr started the game at 2:08, kicking off to Tad Jones on Yale's 15-yard line. Yale's quarterback ran it back 15 yards before he was tackled. Coy immediately punted out of bounds, on Harvard's 26 yard line.

On the first Crimson line-up, on a fake kick Apollonio made four yards through the centre. In the next play Newhall kicked over Coy's head and Harvard had the ball on Yale's 22-yard line. Wendell made 3 yards round Yale's left end on the first rush, but on the next play Apollonio could not gain.

With the ball on Yale's 17-yard line Captain Parker of Harvard dropped back for a try at a field goal. The attempt was a miserable one, as it went up in the air and dropped into Yale's hands on their 5-yard line. On the very first play Brides, on a fake kick, went through the centre and ran to the 35-yard line, where he was tackled by Wendell. Then Bomar took it 8 yards further, between Harvard's right guard and tackle. On the next down Brides was sent through the centre again and reached the middle of the field for another first down, but Bomar, who followed, made only 2 yards. Here Harvard defense stiffened and Yale made only a few yards.

Then came another line-up. A new formation was tried by Yale, with most of the team on the right side, and an onside kick developed on Harvard's side line. Here there was some question as to possession, as neither side apparently caught it, but it was finally decided in favor of Yale. On the first down Coy, starting from Harvard's 22-yard line, made only 1 yard. On the second down Bomar carried it but 2 yards further, so strong was the Harvard defense.

With the ball on Harvard's 18-yard line Bomar and Jones dropped back to try a goal from the field. The ball went wide of the goal post. It was brought out to the 25-yard line. The Harvard defense, on their own goal line, evidently surprised Yale. Burr kicked off to T. Jones on Yale's 40-yard line and the speedy quarterback ran the ball to the middle of the field, where he was thrown heavily by Rand. The Harvard player, however, was slightly injured, but soon recovered.

With the ball in the middle of the field, Yale started again for the Harvard goal line. The first play was an onside kick to Harvard's 30-yard line and Newhall had a chance at the ball. He missed, and it was Yale's ball on Harvard's 33-yard line. Coy on a double pass made 3 yards.

On the next play, through Captain Parker, Coy struggled along to Harvard's 20-yard line for a first down. One more short rush by Yale and then the team was penalized for holding.

Yale's play to regain the distance was a forward pass, but there was more offside play and the ball not going 15 yards another Yale penalty pushed the Blue players back to the middle of the field. Coy on the first play started to run outside of Harvard's right end on a fake kick, but was thrown back for a 15-yard loss. He kicked to Wendell on Harvard's 45-yard line, but the Harvard halfback, although catching the ball cleanly, dropped it in running back and it was Yale's ball on Harvard's 50-yard line.

After a short rush by Brides, Yale made 8 yards on a forward pass. On the third down Coy dropped back for a kick and sent the ball to Newhall on Harvard's 5-yard line, and that player ran it back 8 yards. The first Harvard rush by Rand netted 4 yards. Newhall then punted to Coy, on Harvard's 48-yard line. The first rush by Brides gave Yale 2 yards, but on the next Brides made 5.

With the ball on Harvard's 38-yard line Yale dropped back as if for a punt. Then came a forward pass, which gave the Blue more than the required distance and placed the ball on the Crimson 33-yard line. Yale was penalized 20 yards and the ball was again in the middle of the field, in possession of the Blue. The Harvard defense at this time was superb and Yale seemed able to make only slight gains.

From the middle of the field Coy kicked to Apollino, on Harvard's 15-yard line, and that player ran it back 25 yards before he was thrown. On the first play Yale was penalized for the fourth time for offside work, and the ball was Harvard's on her own 40-yard line. Then came a Crimson penalty, the ball being sent back to Harvard's 25-yard line. On the first play Appollino made 7 yards. Three more yards were made by Rand on a fake kick, but here Harvard was compelled to punt and Newhall kicked to the 50-yard line.

Harvard caught the ball. On the next play Newhall, around Yale's left end, carried the ball to Yale's 4-yard line, on a splendid run behind fine interference. There was some holding, however, and the ball was set back to the middle of the field, but was still Harvard's.

Rand made a yard around Yale's right end and then Newhall dropped back for a punt. He kicked to Coy, on Yale's 30- yard line, and that player made a fair catch. Yale, however, chose to rush and made 3 yards on the first attempt, a plunge through the centre by Coy.

Then came another fake Rick and Coy, who received the ball, started to circle Harvard's right end, but was thrown back 16 yards for a loss. He then kicked to Harvard's 45-yard line and Newhall ran it back 5 yards. Wendell, on the first rush, made 12 yards around Yale's left end. The Harvard interference again being excellent. Rand tried the centre with only a yard gain, and Appollino could carry it only 3 yards further.

Newhall then dropped back for a punt from the centre of the field, and

FRAZER FINED, AND APPEALS.

Oldtown Druggist to Appear Before Supreme Court on Liquor Charge.

OLDTOWN, Me., Nov. 23.—The Sturgis liquor law enforcement deputies, who were besieged last night in the drug store of Alexander Frazer by a crowd of fully 1,000 persons, after they had raided the store and sent away to the city building two loads of barrels and boxes, supposed to contain liquor, remained in the store until early today, when they secured a conveyance and moved away the remaining load of alleged wet goods. The crowd had practically dispersed at midnight, although some persons remained until 3 o'clock, the hour when the deputies withdrew. It was expected that Mr. Frazer would have a hearing today on a search and seizure charge. No arrests for the disturbance were made.

Mr. Frazer was arraigned before the municipal court on charges of search and seizure and nuisance. He was fined $100 and costs on the search and seizure, and appealed. On the nuisance charge he was ordered to appear before the February term of the supreme court. Bail was furnished. The liquors were valued at about $300, and the libel included champagne, beer, ale, 400 quart bottles of whiskey and a varied assortment.

TWO MURDERS IN TWO DAYS.

Burlington, N. J., Loses Citizen, Policeman and River Employe.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Nov. 23.—This quiet town, which was yesterday stirred by the sensational murder and robbery of Edward S. Jefferson, a prominent citizen, was roused to excitement again today by a shooting affair, in which two men, one a policeman, were killed. The dead policeman was George Gusrang, and the other man, who shot Gusrang and killed himself, was Albert Lemon, employed on a dredge in the Delaware river, off this place.

Gusrang was shadowing Lemon as a suspect in the murder of Jefferson, but the police are convinced that he had nothing to do with the crime. The shooting took place about midnight. Gusrang was shot through the heart and Lemon died at 4 o'clock this morning.

BRYAN DISCUSSED INFORMALLY

Democrats Talk of Making Tom Johnson National Chairman.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Nov. 23.—The Democratic national committee today heard committees from various cities which had been sent here to get the convention, if possible. Bryan was discussed informally, and the question of making Tom Johnson of Ohio national chairman was talked about.

HAS CORNER BEEN TURNED?

Banks Throughout Country Expect to Resume Currency Payments Soon.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The visit of J. Pierpont Morgan to Secretary Cortelyou and the President last night was generally accepted here today as evidence that the financial leaders in New York intended to co-operate with the Treasury Department in making a success of the new loans.

The assurances brought by Mr. Morgan in regard to the improvement in conditions in New York, with the subscriptions which are still coming in for the new loans, encourage the belief here that the corner has been turned in the monetary situation, and that the banks throughout the country will soon be able to resume currency payments without restriction. The enormous amount of gold which has arrived, or been engaged, is felt to be rather more than sufficient to restore the New York bank reserve to a point of safety, and it is believed that after the opening of the bids for the Panama bonds the situation will be such that further gold imports will not be required.

NOT TO EXCEED $20,000,000.

Bank of France Will Discount American Paper to Certain Point.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—The Bank of France's operation yesterday in discounting American commercial paper with prime French signatures, and giving gold therefore upon the payment of a premium, will be continued to a certain point. The Associated Press is informed that the amount of gold to be thus released will not exceed $20,000,000, and may be less. The Bank of France is receiving a premium of 3-5 of one percent for the gold.

RICHES FOR NUMISMATISTS.

Improvised Money Now Used Forms New Field for Collectors.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Numismatists have found a new field of development for collection purposes in the great variety of improvised money now in circulation in the interior, South, West and Northwest. They say that the supply of clearing house checks and individual bank issues are so numerous that it is a costly piece of work to make a fair display of the specimens.

THREE LINERS BRING GOLD.

Over $12,000,000 Added to Currency of United States Today.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The sum of $12,319,000 in gold from Europe was added to the currency of this country today, when 826 boxes of the precious metal were landed from three liners. The Mauretania brought $10,974,000, the Baltic $875,000, and La Savoie $500,000.

SUFFRAGETTES IN THE COURTS.

London Police Remove Women Disturbers as Gently as Possible.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The "Suffragettes" shifted their campaign to the courts today, and scenes resembling those at recent political meetings resulted. Well-dressed women appeared at the guild hall and other police courts, and, when the first woman in each case arose, protested against "man-made laws" and declared that the women could not be tried until they had a voice in making the laws. The police removed the disturbers as gently as possible.

ANNIHILATED BY TROOPS.

Moorish Rebels' Ambush Met by Emperor's Forces Near Guebdanu.

MADRID, Nov. 23.—Despatches from Melilla, published here today, say that the Moorish rebels in that district were ambushed near Guebdanu recently, and were annihilated by the Imperial troops.

CRISIS NEAR IN PORTUGAL.

Anti-Dynasty Agitation Growing and Crown Prince Banished.

MADRID, Nov. 23.—Uncensored mail advices from Portugal indicate that the anti-dynasty agitation is growing, and that a crisis seems imminent. The Liberal says it has received confirmation of the report of the banishment of the crown prince of Portugal, Louis Philippe, to the Villa Vicosa, whereone of the royal residences is situated in the forest 15 miles in circumference, and walled in. The paper says the prince's banishment followed a tempestous scene between Louis Philippe and his father, in which the former demanded that King Charles either change his policy or abdicate.

Leaders of Opposition to Premier Franco to Hold Meeting.

LISBON, Nov. 23.—The leaders of the two monarchist parliamentary groups opposed to the dictatorship of Premier Franco will meet tonight and decide on a course of action.

ANY ALLIANCE DENIED.

Populist National Committee to Meet in St. Louis November 26.

JULIET, Ill., Nov. 23.—The Populist committee will meet at the Hotel St. James, St. Louis, November 26. The meeting may result in the fixing of a time and place for holding the convention of 1908 and the re-nomination of Tom Watson of Georgia. National Chairman Ferris of Juliet today denied that any alliance was being arranged with either the Hearst Independence League or the Prohibitionists.

This Morning's News.

SENT INTO EXILE.

Crown Prince of Portugal Banished by the King.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Special despatches from Madrid say the King of Portugal has banished Crown Prince Louis to the Villa Vicoso, a royal country seat in an isolated part of Portugal, 100 miles from Lisbon. This extreme step was taken in consequence of the crown prince remonstrating with his father against the dictatorial regime carried on by Senhor Franco, the prime minister, with the king's assent and support.

The crown prince, whose antagonism to the dictatorship is well known, represented to his father the inadvisability of continuing the present method of government, which, he said, was turning Portugal into a hotbed of Republicans and anarchists, and which might end in the overthrow of the monarchy. King Carlos was greatly incensed and ordered the crown prince into what is practically exile from the capital.

The king's action has caused a great sensation throughout the country. It is declared that the crown prince is under the influence of the Conservatives, who, led by Senhor Villiena, desire the abdication of King Carlos in favor of his son.

The situation in Portugal has been growing worse during the last few weeks if the accounts transmitted by way of Madrid are to be believed, and during the past few days has become threatening. Popular antagonism to the dictatorship has been growing dangerously. The Conservatives are making common cause with the Republicans.

The accidental explosion of bombs the other day, by which two physicians and others concerned in their manufacture were killed, led, it is said, to the discovery of an alarming plot. More than 130 bombs were found and 135 arrests were made.

The Municipal Guards of Lisbon, consisting of 1,200 infantry and 500 cavalry, have been confined to barracks for several days in preparation for any emergency that may arise. The fidelity of the army and navy is declared to be doubtful.

A rigorous press censorship is maintained. All the newspapers of Lisbon except three have been suppressed and their publishers are being prosecuted for publishing seditious articles.

A national demonstration has been arranged for January 2, when, it is stated, it is intended to proclaim a national assembly. The support of the army is relied upon in this movement.

Senhor Villiena is credited with having declared openly that the struggle between King Carlos and the people can only be ended by the king's abdication or deposition.

Foreign correspondents at Lisbon are not allowed to send despatches dealing with the situation, and details are very difficult to obtain.

HAZER CLAIMS SALARY.

Dismissed Midshipman to Bring Suit in Court of Claims.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 22.—The hazing court-martial, as a result of which about a dozen midshipmen were dismissed from the academy in February, 1906, following the Branch-Merriwether affair, is to be re-opened in the court of claims of the United States. This was learned today from George Hiram Munn of New York and Washington, who defended a number of the midshipmen at the trial by court-martial.

The case which will re-open the matter is that of a former midshipman, George E. Melvin of Chicago. Melvin is still a minor and his attorneys are now arranging that a legal guardian shall be appointed for him. This guardian will institute suit for his ward against the government, claiming that he was never legally dismissed from the service and that he is still a midshipman and as such entitled to his salary for the last two years.

Should the court of claims sustain the contention of the plaintiff against the government it would mean the re-opening of the whole series of dismissals.

BELMONT WINS TUNNEL FIGHT.

Validity of Franchise Upheld Unanimously by Supreme Court.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—In a unanimous opinion handed down by the appellate division of the supreme court in the first department, the validity of August Belmont's Steinway tunnel franchise was upheld today. This ends the effort of the various city departments, at the direction of the mayor, to prove that the Steinway tunnel charter, held by the New York & Long Island Railroad, had expired.

As a result of the decision, it is probable that service on the line between New York and Long Island City will soon begin, as trains have already been sent through the tunnel.

STOP GLADSTONE'S SPEECH.

Fight Between Woman Suffragists and Men at Leeds Meeting.

LEEDS, England, Nov. 22.—The woman suffragists tonight virtually compelled Herbert Gladstone, secretary of state for home affairs, to abandon his attempt to address a meeting here. The interruptions from the "suffragettes" became so persistent that Mr. Gladstone declared he would no longer struggle against such tactics and brought his speech to a sudden close.

One of the suffragettes thereupon tried to take possession of the meeting. While she was speaking a free fight broke out between the women and men of the audience. Mr. Gladstone and his wife beat a speedy retreat and the chairman declared the meeting closed.

CRUSADE AGAINST BILLBOARDS.

Methods to Be Employed Subject of Address Before Civic League by Mr. Harlan P. Kelsey.

At the Rogers High School last evening Mr. Harlan P. Kelsey of Salem, Mass., gave an address on "Billboards," the speaker being introduced by Miss Ruth B. Franklin, second vice president of the Civic League of Newport. Mr. Kelsey read a paper this week on this subject before the American Civic Association and the National Municipal League in session in Providence.

In opening Mr. Kelsey spoke of the remarkable convention held in Providence this week, of the work women have done in civic reform and of the value of private initiation, organization, co-operation and definiteness in all reform. The speaker next considered the smoke nuisance now being gradually done away with here and abroad, and billboards, a subject which should be carefully weighed. The trouble with most of the crusades against billboards is that they have not had enough legislative assistance and a strong enough public opinion. "Nuisances to the ear and nose can be abated legally, and the judiciary of this country is beginning to realize that nuisances to the eye will in time be abated in the same way.

As methods to be employed against billboards the following were suggested: First, all of an obscene nature may be disposed of by a local police order, whether they are on private or public grounds; second, no private advertising should be allowed on public property; third, it is well to see if some billboards are up without permission and then it is an easy matter to have them removed; fourth, no billboard over seven feet in height should be allowed; fifth, billboards may be taxed and thus a revenue be brought to the city, and sixth, a just boycott may be instituted against firms which advertise on billboards.

In conclusion Mr. Kelsey said that the public is being educated on the subject of billboards, and he urged his hearers to let lawyers frame laws directed against this nuisance in order that these laws may pass the courts.

After the lecture a number of lantern slides were shown on the subject of billboards and kindred evils which may be improved, the lantern being in charge of Miss Mary F. Leavitt. A rising vote of thanks was then given the speaker for his able address.

WIN HORSE SHOW HONORS.

Reginald and Alfred Vanderbilt Again Successful—Many Prominent Society People Present.

At the national horse show yesterday Reginald C. Vanderbilt won one blue, two red, one yellow and one white ribbon and Alfred G. Vanderbilt was awarded one third prize and one highly recommended award.

Reginald Vanderbilt won his blue ribbon with Frocks and Frills in the class for pairs or harness ponies, 13.3 hands and not exceeding 14.2 hands. In the class for single ponies Frills was only highly recommended, being beaten by J. W. Harriman's Lady Dilham. W. H. Moore's Jessica and Alexander Watson's Elyde Forrester.

Mr. Vanderbilt's Lord Burleigh and Lord Brooke were beaten in the class for pairs shown before a victoria by C. W. Watson's Lord Baltimore and My Maryland II, and in the class for pairs, over 14.2 and not exceeding 15 hands, shown to a light, four-wheeled vehicle, the Vanderbilt entry, Phoebe Wutton and Marie Tempest were beaten by J. W. Harriman's Kitty Grey Norena.

In the class for tandems, the horses to be over 15.1 hands, R. C. Vanderbilt's pair, Lord Burleigh and Lord Brooke, was placed second and A. G. Vanderbilt's Polly Prim and Sweet Marie third, W. H. Moore's Pride of Prides and King of Kings being awarded the blue ribbon.

For the best three harness horses Judge Moore's Pride of Prides, Klaw of Kings and Debators were placed first, C. W. Watson's Lord Baltimore, My Maryland and My Maryland II, second; R. C. Vanderbilt's Dr Selwonk, Lord Burleigh and Lord Brooke third and A. G. Vanderbilt's Polly Prim, Gibson Boy and The Major fourth.

Society was still faithful to the show yesterday. Mrs. Potter Palmer, who had not been seen in New York for some months, was with Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt during the afternoon. Mrs. Henry Clews, Jr., recently arrived from Paris, was also one of the visitors during the afternoon.

With Mrs. Frank K. Sturgis were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Astor Bristed, Mrs. M. Brady Hall and Mr. Girard Foster. Others noticed in the boxes and elsewhere were Mrs. P. Cooper Hewitt, Mrs. Foxhall Keene, Mrs. Herman B. Duryea, Mr. and Mrs. William Pollock, Mr. J. J. Wysong, Miss Madeline Knowlton, Mrs. John Henry Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. E. Ritzema de Grove, Mr. Dongan de Peyster, Mrs. Elbon Wright, Miss Lena Pell Wright, Mrs. Charles A. Childs and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell.

PAYING WORK.

[Edward Everett Hale in The Circle.]

"What is the Boston Trade-School for Girls?" I asked.

"Come and see," my friend answered, and made an appointment to show me the school.

We went together to 674 Massachusetts avenue. There we found 140 girls being taught the trades of plain sewing, dressmaking, millinery, machine-operating, and straw-hat making. The school keeps every week day from half past eight till five. In the classrooms the girls, each in a white, ruffled apron, sat round long tables sewing, while the teacher moved from one to another directing and criticising. We examined their work, the first sewers, the children's simple clothing, the underclothing, the linen shirt-waist dresses, and the brown wool dress, which three of the girls in the dressmaking-room were finishing, one embroidering the sleeves, another finishing the waist and another the skirt. The dressmaker was teaching a fourth girl to drape the blue waist that hung on the form.

We paused at the door of the millinery-room to watch a new girl laboriously covering a wire frame with buckram. We visited the class in machine-operating, and saw their first coarse aprons as well as the fine underclothing on which they were at work.

"I let each girl progress as fast as she is able," the teacher said, "just as in a shop." This was true of all the classes in the school. "If one can learn on two aprons, it is not fair to make her do more because another needs four."

"Where do these girls come from?" I asked.

"From Boston and the towns near-by," was the answer. "The school is free. Girls who must leave the public school as soon as the law allows to earn their living come here, because a year at the school will enable them to enter a trade as trained workers with good wages and ability to advance, quickly, instead of beginning as poorly paid apprentices and picking up the trade for themselves."

MISS JEAN REID.

Miss Jean Reid, who is the only daughter of the American ambassador to Great Britain, Whitelaw Reid, recently returned to London after a stay in the United States. She was conspicuous as a bridesmaid at the very fashionable wedding of Miss Anna Breese, daughter of the late W. L. EDUCATIONAL VALUE OF PARKS.

In a Large City One May Receive Knowledge in Nature By Visiting These Gardens.

[James Owen in Municipal Engineering Magazine.]

One view of park development and maintenance that requires special consideration and one part of it has so far not yet taken hold of and that is the educational feature. A city-bred boy, especially in a large city, receives his education in nature and allied studies from his books, with but little opportunity to see the real thing. A complete park development affords to the student a variety of object lessons that he will absorb in a much quicker time than mere book knowledge will give him. "Think" he says "of the subjects embraced in a complete park; the study of botany including flowers, plants and trees; forestry properly developed in the rural portion; animals in the zoological department; birds; fishes in the ponds and lakes; weather from the meteorological apparatus used in all well maintained parks can also be profitably studied in a limited degree. Now with all these subjects, which are really part of the curriculum of the public school, why not let the park system be an adjunct of the school? Why not let classes in turn visit the parks under competent teachers and learn from actual inspection. The parks of the country are great educational influences, to a large extent indirectly and imperceptibly, in fact by absorption. Let this influence be extended into a practical shape, and much good will result."

TO REDUCE WORKING FORCE.

Owing to the cancellation of an order for 425 locomotives by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company with the Baldwin Locomotive Company, the latter concern will discharge 8,000 of its working force, which now numbers 25,000. Unless new orders are booked the force will be reduced to about 5,000 ultimately.

It is estimated that in the North Philadelphia district more than 25,000 men will find themselves out of employment this winter. The Pennsylvania Railroad, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Reading Railroad, American Bridge Company and other manufacturing concerns are daily curtailing their working forces.

The Pennsylvania Railroad employs 55,000 men in its various departments. Most of those are clerks in the passenger and freight departments. A gradual elimination has begun, and the force will be greatly reduced.

EASTERN STAR WHIST.

Last evening, in spite of the inclement weather and many counter attractions, there was a good attendance at the Eastern Star whist in Masonic Temple. The women's prizes were won as follows: First, Mrs. Harry St. Clair; second, Mrs. Cooper A. Easterbrooks; third, Mrs. John P. Fritz; fourth, Mrs. Jennie Trapp; consolation, Miss Ada Bliss. The following men were awarded prizes: First, Alfred W. Holland; second, Dr. Frank W. Putnam; third, Cooper A. Easterbrooks; fourth, William Garbutt; consolation, Alfred A. Campbell.

CLOSEST CONTEST FOR YEARS.

Sisson Still Gains in Count of Providence Districts.

Reduces Watrous's Plurality to Ten—Board Again Refuses to Place Democratic Seal on Vault.

A further net gain of nine votes for Charles Sisson for lieutenant governor was the result of the official count of 10 districts of the city of Providence by the State Returning Board yesterday afternoon. A revised reckoning gives Watrous an apparent plurality of 10.

The aggregate of Sisson's gains in Providence is 112 net in the 43 city districts counted. Of this number 111 is straight gain, the remaining one being a loss for Watrous. In these 43 city districts the vote for Sisson is 9,470, for Watrous 7,258.

Tabulations made by Richard W. Jennings, secretary of the board, show that in the 123 districts counted thus far Mr. Sisson has been credited with a net gain of 89 votes, and that the plurality for Ralph C. Watrous, the Republican candidate, calculated on the published returns from the election officials in the 54 uncounted districts, is thus reduced to 10.

The board again refused to grant a request from Governor Higgins that extra precautions be taken to safeguard the ballots remaining in the vault at the State House to be counted. The request was made through Peter C. Cannon, attorney, and Joseph V. Broderick, executive secretary. It was to the effect that because of the closeness of the vote for lieutenant governor one of the Democratic watchers should be allowed to place his seal upon the vault door prior to the adjournment of the board for the three days' recess to Monday.

The apparent closeness of the contest for lieutenant governor surpasses any election for general officers within the recollection of politicians for at least a quarter of a century. Under the rules which guided the State Returning Board before the present form of ballot was adopted, providing for straight party voting by means of a cross in a circle, the result would depend upon decisions over distinguishing marks, and the remaining sessions of the board would be marked by continual clashes between the Republican and Democratic interests.

That the provision in the recent law that "no ballot shall be rejected for any technical error which does not make it impossible to determine the voter's choice" allows the board wide latitude was exemplified during the count yesterday. A ballot was found in the Second district of the Eighth ward which bore a cross to the right of the name of Ralph C. Watrous for lieutenant governor and another against the name of William B. Greenough for attorney general. Under the name of Mr. Watrous was written the name "Domenico," in lead pencil. These were the only marks on the ballot.

Objection was made by the Democratic watchers to counting this ballot, under the provision of the election laws which says that no voter shall place any mark upon his ballot by which it may afterward be identified. The board voted 3 to 2 to count the ballot as a vote for Mr. Watrous and Mr. Greenough.

In the first district of the Seventh ward was a ballot on which "42 Wendell street" was written under the name of James H. Higgins. The ballot was counted for all candidates voted for with the exception of the candidate for governor.

In the 123 districts so far counted the corrected total vote for Watrous is 23,870 and for Sisson 23,467. With the election night figures for the remaining 24 districts Watrous's estimated total vote is 31,209, and Sisson's 31,199, a plurality of 10 for Watrous.

The districts remaining to be counted are as follows: Providence 14, Seituate 1, South Kingstown 2, Warren 1, Warwick 8, Westerly 1, Woonsocket 5. The board will probably meet Monday and Tuesday of next week and adjourn over Thanksgiving, completing the count Friday.

DECATUR'S HOME.

A Celebrated Landmark of More Than Usual Interest to Make Way For New Home.

[Philadelphia Inquirer.]

A celebrated landmark of more than usual interest is soon to give way to the march of improvements in its vicinity. It was once the home of Commodore Stephen Decatur, and all who recall his expedition to the Mediterranean feel an interest in the homestead. It stands out on Powder Mill lane, in Frankford, in the midst of historic surroundings.

When the portentous sign "For Sale" appeared upon the old-fashioned rambling homestead there was universal regret in the neighborhood of the relic that has long been a source of pride to the inhabitants of Frankford, and the regret was deepened when it was found later that a modern building operation is to take the place of the famous Decatur mansion. The estate adjoins the site of the ancient powder mill of revolutionary fame on Powder Mill lane, just above Nicetown lane.

The Decatur mansion has long been noted as the home of the naval hero who did much toward carrying the glory of our maritime prowess to the far corners of the earth. In 1808 the citizens of Philadelphia gave a splendid banquet to the hero of Tripoli, "the pride and honor of the nation's navy," and December 10, 1812, the council of Philadelphia voted him a word. One of his pet names at that time was "the Bayard of the Sea." At the same time resolutions were adopted eulogistic of his gallant work in capturing the British frigate Macedonia.

Decatur gained much fame by his magnificent operations against the Algerians in 1815. He made a satisfactory bargain with the Dey of Algiers by blowing up the Algerian fleet, and then secured a treaty which provided that thereafterward no tribute was to be paid by the United States, all Americans were to be released from captivity and not more were to be enslaved.

In the graveyard of Old St. Peter's Church, at 3d and Pine streets, Decatur's monument stands as one of the city's noteworthy memorials in stone. An eagle with spread wings is mounted upon a pure Ionic column.

His death was the result of an encounter March 22, 1820, with Commander James Barron on the famous dueling grounds of Bladensburg, Md. The duel grew out of a quarrel arising over Barron's surrender of his ship some years before. It was several years later that Decatur's body was brought to Philadelphia and its reinterment in St. Peter's churchyard was made the occasion of a great civic and naval demonstration. At the same time the Decatur home on Powder Mill lane was made of special interest because of the memorial celebration.

There has been some talk of preserving the historic structure, even though a new building operation crowds modern houses upon it, but in all probability sentiment will be compelled to give way to the march of improvement, and the interesting old landmark, with all its traditions and associations, will soon disappear.

MUSICAL TEXT-BOOKS.

"Half Hour Lessons in Music" "Musical Essentials" and a New Dictionary.

Recent issues of musical publishing houses include three valuable text books. "Half Hour Lessons in Music," by Mrs. Hermann Kotschmar, appeals particularly to the teacher of small children, though many ideas may be gathered therefrom for older pupils. Mrs. Kotschmar is known as a successful teacher along Kindergarten and primary music grades, and has gathered many bits of useful experience in a wide field. This little book is the outcome or outgrowth of the series of articles which appeared in the Ladies Home Journal two years ago. These created so much interest that the demand for more has resulted in the publication in this form of those papers, with many additional ones.

It is based on sound pedagogic principles, is practical, appeals at once to the child, and bridges the gap between Kindergarten play and actual piano work. It will also be found to lend itself to more extended forms and side lights if desirable in individual work. Hand and finger drills, notation, time, and all sorts of elementary work are presented in such a charming way that the children are won at once and the drudgery of "first work" is escaped entirely. In addition to class drills are musical games a letter to teachers, and a graded list of pieces for recreation and study.

[The Oliver Ditson Company.]

"Musical Essentials"—what are they? A broad question. One would say on the instant: "They are many." A wide outlook over and intimate acquaintance with all schools, an absolute certainty of the knowledge one possesses, the artistic spirit, the careful technique, the singing touch, clarity of phrasing (and of pedal, if piano)—all these and many more go to make the thorough musician. But behind and underneath all this is the necessity of an exhaustive knowledge of detail.

The hand-book under consideration deals with just these little things in a convenient form. Notation, its history, placing, rhythmics forms, metronome marks, dynamics, scale structure, intervals, triads, seventh chords and cadences, transposition, modulation and suspension, embellishments, English and German pitch names, pedals of pianoforte, musical forms and structure the grouping of the modern orchestra, conducting, prosody, acoustics, pronunciation of Italian, German and French words, abbreviations and signs used in music, words used ambiguously in music, musicians prominent in musical history, are some of the things found between the covers. At the end is an excellent dictionary of musical terms. This book and the following will be found invaluable aids to the teacher and student.

[The John Church Company.]

Perhaps every musician knows what freie schreibart, einschlugend, einschiebebogen, takt-bezeichnung and other similar words mean; and perhaps not. For those who do not, and who would like to know not only these but hundreds of other musical terms, Mr. Tom S. Watton has compiled a dictionary. One would think there were already musical dictionaries enough, but when one looks between the covers of this particular one he realizes at once that it fills a place not quite filled before. It was originally planned to be per se a dictionary of orchestral terms, but has grown beyond these limits, so that it is useful not only primarily for players of divers instruments, but secondarily for all players and many singers. Possessors of scores will find it especially useful.

PERSONALS.

....Screnod Smith, 75 years old, a wealthy retired merchant of Meriden, Conn., and Mrs. Louisa A. Brooks, 71 years old of New Haven have been married at the home of a son of the bride. Among the guests were several who attended school in East Meriden with the bridal couple more than 50 years ago.

....Foster Crowell, a civil engineer, for many years identified with the engineering department of the Pennsylvania railroad and who has been engaged in various Philadelphia municipal commissions, was appointed street cleaning commissioner yesterday by Mayor McClellan, to succeed Dr. Walter Hensel, who resigned.

....Captain James H. Holmes, one of the last of the John Brown band of abolitionists, died Thursday night at the home of William Hockman, near Red Bank, N. J. He was 74 years old. He accompanied John Brown to Kansas in the '50's, and afterward saw active service in the Civil war. He was territorial secretary of New Mexico under President Lincoln, and was a frequent contributor to the press.

....Three additional aides to the President were appointed yesterday. Captain R. A. Van Heyne, as military aide, was appointed from the Seventeenth United States infantry. Lieutenant Thomas Holcomb, Jr., of Delaware, the champion rifle shot of the world, is designated from the marine corps. Captain Sherwood A. Cheney of the general staff, now on duty at the War College, is the third appointee.

....Major General Frederick Dent Grant and Mrs. Grant, accompanied by their son, Lieutenant Ulysses S. Grant, 3d., will arrive in Washington Monday morning and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean. They will remain until after the wedding of Miss Edith Root and Lieutenant Grant, which will take place next Wednesday. Tuesday night General and Mrs. Grant will be the guests of the admiral of the navy and Mrs. Dewey at dinner.

....Ernest Dallon of Chicopee has received notice from persons in England, conveying the information that he is one of several heirs entitled to a share in the estate of John Dallon, an Englishman, who amassed great wealth through his discovery of the secret of blending dyes used in woolen goods. The fortune is said to amount to $375,000,000 but what share Mr. Dallon will have is not yet known. There are three other known heirs to the estate of Mr. Dallon's brother, Thomas, of Manchester, England, and Mrs. Jerome Moynihan of Princeton, Me., and Mrs. M. H. Russell of Oldtown, Me., both of whom are sisters of Ernest Dallon. Ernest Dallon was born in Leicester, England. He has lived in Chicopee several years, and is that city's representative in the Massachusetts house of representatives.

ONE EFFECT OF THE NEWPORT PLAN.

[Providence Journal.]

One effect of the new system of municipal government which was inaugurated by Newport last year is that Mayor Clarke is renominated without opposition from any party or faction. This seems to illustrate practically the Newport idea that, when a city secures a satisfactory executive, political lines will disappear before the purpose to keep him.

Costume for Evening Wear.

Evening costumes in light colors white and all the pastel shades are equally fashionable. Blondine, one of the fashionable new shades, is the tone of this chiffon satin semi-princesse gown. This style of dress is particularly adapted to many figures, for it has a tendency, with its long centre back and front panel, to give long and graceful lines. The panel is of filet net with an all-over design in soutache. The princesse line is broken on each side of the panel under the arms with a folded girdle of the satin, and the material above and below this girdle is pleated and stitched flat so that the dress fits perfectly at this point. Mandarin armholes are simulated with bands of the braided filet net over the satin.

AT THE END.

When the sands in the hourglass falter
And the end of it all is nigh;
When the signal is made for the curtain
And the footlights begin to die,
It is good to glance back at the duties
We have done in the days gone by.

When the grave in the grass is yawning
And we totter, decrepit and gray;
When the darkness begins to hover
And we near the end of the day,
It is good to look back at the flowers
We have planted along the way.

When the candle has burned to the socket
And the flame in the wind is bent;
When life to the utmost limit
Of years is nearly spent,
It is good to look back at the kindness
Our lives to others have lent.

When the windows begin to darken
And we bid farewell to the sun;
When the singing is turned to silence
And the end of it all is won,
It is good to gaze back through the twilight
At the good that we may have done.

A NEW BED.

[Popular Mechanics.]

A new era in flat construction, in which bedroomless apartments, made possible by the introduction of sanitary disappearing wall beds, is the feature, is about to be launched upon its journey of popular acclaim or defeat by a firm of western flat builders. It is claimed that flat buildings thus constructed will make two and three room suites serve the purpose of the old four or five room apartments.

The bed when not in use is folded into a closet or recess, ventilated and lighted by a window or vent, creating an all-day sanitary arrangement. The bedding is securely fastened at the foot of the bed and when shut away for the day the sheets and comforters hang slightly separated, thus affording proper sanitation. When not in use the ornamental face of the bed presents to the eye a large cheval plate mirror and mantel place. When the bed is down, automatically closing doors form an apparently solid wall.

BUSINESS TURNED FROM ROAD.

Twenty Thousand Foreign Cars in Use on New Haven, With Demurrage Daily of $8,000.

There are at present in use upon the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad system about 20,000 foreign cars per day upon an average, which is somewhat of a decrease of the average in the earlier part of the year. This indicates that to some extent the outside roads have been diverting business from the New Haven system, which is further indicated by the congestion of freight upon the Boston & Maine systems.

A high officer of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company confirms this diversion of freight, but says it is not serious in amount. He further states that owing to the congestion on the Boston & Albany, the New York Central, its lessee, has been forced to turn upon the New Haven system 100 carloads daily, thus making up largely for any freight diverted by other roads. With about 20,000 foreign cars upon its system and about 4,000 of its own cars upon outside systems, the New Haven Company becomes a daily debtor road to the amount of about 16,000 cars, which, at 50 cents demurrage a day, means a total indebtedness of about $8,000 daily.

The New Haven Company withdrew the first of last October from the American Railway Association, and the dispute between it and the outside roads upon the new charge of 50 cents per diem not having been settled all payments to the outside roads have been withheld to the extent of nearly $250,000 a month, and now amount to several hundred thousand dollars.

This has created a situation which of late has become very acute indeed, and it now can be stated authoritatively that the matter is likely to be settled within a short time, probably in the form of a compromise agreement on a basis of 35 cents per car in place of the 50 cents per diem established by the American Railway Association.

This would result in a saving to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company of about $5,000 a day, or about $1,000,000 a year. In demurrage charges, provided all the connecting railroad companies assent.

TABLE LINEN For Thanksgiving.

Every housewife takes great pride in her Thanksgiving dinner. She tries to think of everything in the eatable line that will make her dinner a success, but often forgets that new table linen is needed until too late. This is where we come in with a few gentle reminders that should find favor with the thrifty housekeeper and shopper.

No need to mention the fact that linens are high. Everyone knows that. The quality of these offerings speak for themselves and prove that our prices have not been advanced nor the quality cheapened.

Here are a few items submitted for your approval—

Mercerized Damask. Not linen, but a splendid substitute. The patterns are very elaborate and the cloth durable and sightly. 50c. per yard

Linen Damask. New patterns in rose and conventional designs good quality and cheap at the price 75c. per yard

Linen Damask. The standard quality. New patterns in bordered effects with plain centres, all-over, conventional designs, etc. Fine silky damask, good enough for any table. $1.00 per yard

Napkins to match the patterns of these cloths, from $2.50 to $3.75 per dozen according to the size desired.

Linen Damask. Extra heavy quality. For those who desire an extra nice cloth we recommend this. Patterns include the popular ribbon patterns and sea shell designs Firm and fine. $1.50 per yd

Napkins to match these patterns at $3.50 and $4 per doz.

Other Napkins, in great variety of choice patterns, at $1.75, $2.25, $2.50, $2.75, $3, $3.25, etc., per dozen; all sizes.

THE NEWPORT EXPERIMENT.

Many sentiments were expressed at the conference just closed in Providence, of representatives of the National Municipal League and the American Civic Association, which bore indirectly upon the kind of municipal government in force in this city at the present time, and which commended its spirit and aims if not its concrete form. These should be of interest and give satisfaction to the people here, who are about to pass through a second election under the new charter, designed to eliminate all partisanship and party fealty from city affairs, and which has in reality accomplished a great deal in that direction in the single year during which it has been in force. Independence of parties in municipal elections and administration might indeed be almost said to have been the key-note of the whole convention and its addresses, for it cropped out explicitly in many speeches, and even when not definitely mentioned the recommendations made were generally inspired by that spirit.

One speaker put the matter forcibly and in a somewhat new form, when he declared that the man who is responsible for the ills of cities is not the boss, or the politician, or the corporation lobbyist, but the one who in municipal elections always votes the straight party ticket. That is putting the responsibility clearly and emphatically where it belongs, for the straight party voter in city elections is the root from which all the rank growth of poisonous foliage, flower and fruit springs. From him flow all the evil influences which result in bossism, extravagance, graft, reckless expenditure of the city's money and control by corporation power. It is the straight party voter who makes the boss possible and furnishes him with his job, for under an administration freed from partisan influence there is no place for the boss, since he can have no power. He has been driven out of his position, and robbed of his influence, and the city has become free from the fetters it has worn.

The straight party voter is responsible, too, to the influence of trusts and corporations in the administration of the affairs of many cities, because by voting according to his party affiliations he creates and maintains the boss, and the boss lives upon the corporations and the trusts. As the speaker referred to said in his address, such a government is representative, but is representative only of the men and the corporations which have secured privileges from it or are seeking such privileges, and not of the people. The administration which is divorced from partisanship, and so is free from a boss, and consequently is unhampered by corporation influence, represents the whole people, all classes and conditions of citizens—good, bad and indifferent, rich and poor, learned and unlettered, honest and dishonest—and seeks the highest good of the highest number and the real improvement of the municipality.

As the people of Newport approach this second election under the new form of city government adopted a year ago they should be thankful and proud that they have thrown off the old traditions and placed themselves in the forefront of the column of municipal progress, where they are conspicuous by their position and serve as an object lesson to the whole country of what is possible in the administration of city affairs. A year ago the country watched this city to see what it would do with its opportunity to drive partisanship out of municipal government and inaugurate a form of administration which should have for its object only the highest welfare of the city and the citizens; for a whole year the country has been watching to see if this city would be faithful to the trust committed to it and prove by its first year of new administration that non-partisan municipal government is the best sort; and now again the country is watching to see if this city by its choice of officials will prove that it means to continue its good work in this direction and advance even farther than it was able to do in a single experimental year. To furnish that proof is the duty of the voters of the city, and they can do so only by the elimination of even the semblance of partisan influence from their choice of candidates, and by electing men upon whom they can positively and completely rely to do their share of the management of the business of the city without a thought of politics and partisanship.

THE DEMAND FOR CERTIFICATES.

In Philadelphia and Cincinnati there is a moderate demand for the three per cent certificates from individuals. New York bankers will take $25,000,000 and St. Louis bankers will take $12,000,000, if the treasury will leave the money in their vaults as a government deposit. It may do this in the case of St. Louis, which is in the agricultural region, but it is understood to be anxious to remove money from New York to the West and South. New York bankers are meeting to a considerable extent the demands of their Western and Southern correspondents for currency, but have no notion of supplying currency to the government at par when they cannot secure as much as they need of it and when brokers are paying 2½ to 2¾ per cent premium for it in clearing house checks.

Of course there is no question of the credit of the government. That has not been impaired and the government needs no money. So the only question about the certificates is what premium they afford of increasing the supply of currency. The individual buyers in Philadelphia and Cincinnati will not issue notes against the certificates,and we have no means of knowing whether they have been hoarding money. If they have not been withholding money their purchase of the certificates will add nothing to the supply of currency.

If the banks can issue notes based upon the certificates the supply of currency might be increased, but it is not quite certain that they can use the certificates as security. It is so stated positively, but unofficially; the treasury is saying very little about it; it said nothing in the original order. But the New York and St. Louis banks will not take the certificates except upon conditions to which the treasury may not agree. So we are left thus far in considerable doubt about the results of the issue of certificates, which the law authorized the Secretary to issue only when he needed money for the current expenses of the government.

NOT A CONVENTION OF OFFICE HOLDERS.

It was a striking incident in the Minneapolis convention of 1892, when the late Senator Wolcott of Colorado read a tabulated list of the federal office holders who were delegates. It did not affect the action of the convention, but it made a deep impression upon the country, for the Democrats used it as a campaign document. Benjamin Harrison was re-nominated by a decided majority, but it was mainly by the votes of men who held offices at his hands, and who expected to continue to hold them if he remained in the Presidency, and did not expect to keep their places if some other Republican succeeded him. But, while the office holders formed a large part of the convention, they constituted an infinitesimal fraction of the voting population of the country, and Harrison was defeated.

Mr. Roosevelt wants no repetition of that performance. He does not intend to run again, but if he did he could not afford to be nominated by the men whom he put in office. Most of the officials three years ago were McKinley's selections, and while they had an obvious interest in continuing Mr. Roosevelt in office their position was different from that of men selected by Mr. Roosevelt himself for offices. Office holders were not so large a proportion of the convention of 1904 as they were of that of 1892.

As the convention of 1908 approaches it is noticeable that Mr. Roosevelt's appointees are generally for a third term, and many of them are loudly declaring that the President will be forced to yield to the demands of the country. The President has had the word passed along the official lines that federal office holders are not to go to the convention. He does not wish the nomination, but he wishes to name the candidate and if the Republican nominee were selected by delegates holding offices by grace of Mr. Roosevelt the fact would handicap the man in going before the people. Secretary Taft has been injured more than aided by the notorious fact that the President has selected him as his successor.

IN RESTRAINT OF AUTOMOBILES.

It is well that the automobilists as represented in the Auto Club in this state, are to take up the question of reckless over-speeding and urge the passage by the legislature of more stringent laws. In Rhode Island now there is no provision for the licensing of drivers of automobiles, and this is thought to be one reason why there is so much dissatisfaction. It is possible for a man to buy a car and allow another person to drive it, whether that person knows anything about a machine or not. In many other states, notably most of the New England states drivers are obliged to take out a license after passing a state examination. They must carry their papers or badge with them and are liable to arrest if they do not. The proposed law will provide for the licensing of chauffeurs and make stringent provision for violation of the law.

American bankers have purchased fully $85,000,000 in gold for shipment to this country, and it is said that fully $50,000,000, and perhaps $75,000,000, more could be obtained in Europe if the shipments of grain, cotton and breadstuffs from the United States should continue at the present rate. It is said that this country is pouring its agricultural wealth in large streams into England, France, Germany, Italy and southern Europe, in order to obtain gold.

The unprecedented rush of foreigners returning to their homes in Europe threatens a serious freight congestion. The eastward-bound steerage travel during the past six weeks has been unparalleled and the demand for accommodations has been so great that bookings have been closed weeks in advance of sailing.

It may be of general interest to learn that in Vienna three grams of radium have been extracted from 10,000 kilos of pitchblend at one third the cost of previous production. It was estimated not long ago that an ounce of radium would cost not less than $2,000,000.

The official count of the votes for Lieutenant governor is so close that it seems that either Mr. Watrous, the Republican candidate, or Mr. Sisson, the Democratic nominee, may be declared elected by a very small plurality.

It is said of the conference of members of the Democratic national committee at French Lick, Ind., that while the surface is all Bryan, there is an under-current of doubt and questioning in the minds of many of the committeemen.

This must be Indian summer.

FOR EVACUATION OF CUBA.

[Washington Star.]

The completion of the Cuban census has caused a demand from many sources that a time be fixed at once for the holding of municipal and national elections in the island. Officials of the War and State Department assert that the problem is not solved by the termination of the census enumerations and the tabulation of the returns to form electoral registration lists. The provisional governor is disturbed over the recommendation he must make concerning the time of holding the elections, and it appears that he cannot expect aid from the various political parties, inasmuch as the leaders hold varying views.

The taxing of the census in Cuba by American methods is recognized on every side as a great and needed work, but in the present instance there is no disguising the fact that it was used as a means of delaying the time when the United States again must surrender the reins of government by the Cubans. It was hoped that by the time the enumeration had been completed an agreement could be reached by the political leaders as to the time of holding the elections and that the United States would be spared the necessity of incuring the enmity of any of the parties. It had been hoped, too, that time would have healed much of the soreness engendered by the revolution against the Palma government and that all parties would become imbued with a desire to hold a peaceable and fair election. While these hopes have not been entirely fulfilled, it is true that the United States now occupies a more favorable position in the matter than it did a year ago.

From reports received by Washington officials it appears that there will be dissatisfaction with the result of the election, whatever it is. The only thing hoped for is that a majority of the best classes of Cubans will see that the United States is endeavoring to live up to the promise made by President Roosevelt that American troops shall be withdrawn at the earliest practical moment, and the governmental affairs restored to Cubans. Governor Magoon is not quite ready to say when the elections shall be held, but it is believed that a date will be fixed arbitrarily within a year.

BIGGEST JUDGE IN THE COUNTRY

[Aurora, Ill., Despatch.]

"How much off today?" a merchant who was standing in his store door asked a lawyer.

"Two pounds, almost to the 500 mark now," was the answer.

The lawyer had been in police court and was doing his part in spreading the daily bulletin as to the weight of Peter Klees the police magistrate. Judge Klees weighed 535 pounds when he was elected and a special chair had to be built for him. Before the chair was completed he broke so many chairs that he stood up unless the session was very long, and then he seated himself on the window sill. The building inspector stopped that, however.

Now Judge Klees is in the down grade in weight. He gained pretty rapidly after he was elevated to the dignity of a judge and became one of the sights of the town. Everybody took his visitor around to see him. But Judge Klees grew so fat that he became alarmed, and even at the risk of losing his popularity and fame as the biggest judge in the country he decided to train down a bit. First he tried a dietic sanitarium, and during his three weeks' stay there daily telegrams were posted in the city hall court room as to the reduction in weight. Then there was a day without a bulletin. That was explained at noon when the judge appeared at his favorite restaurant here and ordered a package of beefsteaks, well broiled. He explained that he had stood the diet as long as possible. Now he is taking the correspondence course and the diet most of the time. It includes many peanuts and beanos.

Judge Klees is 33 years of age, and has been fat most of that time. He made his entry into Illinois politics when he made a football rush to the platform with a Samuel Alschuler banner and stampeded the Democratic convention. He was rewarded for this feat by the appointment as a policeman when George Alschuler, the gubernatorial candidate's brother, was elected mayor here. As a policeman he was a cinch. He walked his beat faithfully until he weighed 500 pounds, then he resigned and became a candidate for police magistrate. His majority was in proportion to his weight.

Last winter when the sleet was on the sidewalks the magistrate telephoned police headquarters he would not be down. The chief sent a carriage for him, but the door was not big enough. Then the chief sent an express wagon, but the judge declined with thanks and spent three days at home, playing sixty-six and seven-up, with such friends as called. His attendance at theatres is limited to those houses which have arranged special seats for him.

Tailors give Judge Klees' waist measure at 72 and chest at 68. Last winter while he was gaining weight one of them made an overcoat, but before it was completed the judge had gained so a piece had to be put into the back.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

Automobile Club to Advocate Stringent Legislation.

Reasons for Resignation of Councilman Peabody of Westerly—Mysterious Fires.

As an outcome of the two automobile accidents which caused the death of two boys, Elmer Buck of Central Falls Sunday and Elisha Arnold of Pawtuxet Wednesday, a special meeting of the board of governors of the Rhode Island Automobile Club has been called to discuss and advocate the passage of an act by the General Assembly which will prevent reckless automobile driving in Rhode Island. President William Penn Mather, Secretary Frank M. Barber and other members of the club met in conference yesterday afternoon and it was decided to issue the call for the special meeting to take action for a better state regulation of automobile drivers. The indignation caused by the frequency of accidents, apparently caused by recklessness and indifference to the rights of others, has increased steadily and throughout the city and its vicinity several mass meetings have been held to condemn such action on the part of the automobile drivers. The conservative drivers disturbed by the reflection cast upon them by the reckless and fast driving of other chauffeurs, have taken a leading part in the movement against the abuses, not only to protect their own name and reputation but to protect the public as well from reckless sand foolhardy automobilists.

In a statement made last evening Thomas H. Peabody of Westerly explained his reasons for his resignation from the council of that town. He claims that his associates in the council removed him from the office of probate judge and from the police committee, and made other appointments which were against his wishes. He charges them with having endeavored by these acts to force his resignation, but he denies that their efforts had anything to do with his final resolution to resign. Mr. Peabody says his stand on the liquor question in Westerly was well known. It was equally as well known, he adds, that Albert H. Langworthy's views were diametrically opposed to his. When the Republicans nominated Mr. Langworthy to run against him for the legislature, Mr. Peabody says he considered that it would be a test of public sentiment. Mr. Langworthy was elected, 641 to 476, and Mr. Peabody "in obedience to the voice of public opinion" resigned from the council.

The third fire of mysterious origin within as many days, discovered last evening in the Fox Point district of Providence has aroused the police to renewed activity in an effort to ferret out the cause, as no reasonable theory, such as spontaneous combustion or accident, seems to hold in any of the three cases. The blaze last evening was a small one, a barn on Dove street, near Williams street, being slightly damaged. The flames, however, started on the outside of the building, the police say. The firemen extinguished the flames before they had made much headway. The first of the three fires was at John McInerny's stable, Governor and Williams street, Tuesday night, when four horses were burned. Wednesday evening G. S. Wilcox's hay and grain establishment, South Main and Bridge street, was nearly destroyed by a fierce blaze.

Frank Palliotti, a young Italian employed in the bleaching department of the Cranston Print Works, was caught in a moving strip of cloth shortly before closing time last evening and injured so that he died less than two hours later in the Rhode Island Hospital. He was 17 years old and boarded with an Italian family in Knightsville. Palliotti was at work on a pleating machine. In the same room, but 30 feet away, was John McHale at a washing machine, from which the cloth ran in a long strip to the pleating machine operated by the Italian. The first hint of anything out of the way was when McHale noticed that the cloth was not passing away from the washing machine properly. He looked in the direction of the other machine and saw Palliotti, caught by the upper part of the body, in the cloth. As no one saw the accident the details of it are not known, but it is supposed that in leaning over the machine Palliotti's neck was caught in the moving cloth and he was carried into a pulley, where the cloth bound him tighter and tighter until the slowing down of the machine attracted the attention of his shopmate. The cloth gripped his neck so tightly that he could make no outcry. McHale stopped the machine and the man was released. He was unconscious and died 20 minutes after reaching the hospital.

Walter J. Prout, aged 22 years, son of Police Sergeant Joseph A. Prout of Providence, sustained a fractured thigh and serious injuries to his hips by being struck by a big rock hurled by a blast at Bristol yesterday afternoon. Prout is employed as a mason's apprentice by the Hartwell & Kingston Company, which is erecting the new mill for the National India Rubber Company at Bristol. Yesterday afternoon he was working in a pit within the mill building, enclosure. About 75 or 100 feet away laborers were engaged in blasting a ledge. Suddenly, after a heavy blast, a huge piece of rock, weighing a quarter of a ton, hurled through a window of the mill structure and rolled rapidly toward young Prout. The heavy mass struck him before he could get out of the way and knocked him unconscious to the bottom of the working pit, pinning him to the floor. It was found that the young man had sustained a compound fracture of his right leg between the hip and the knee and that both hips had been badly hurt.

Papers giving in detail the facts of two of the many rescues performed by Frank L. Baxter, who until his death, last June, was drawbridge tender and assistant superintendent at the Point Street bridge, Providence, were sent to the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission at Pittsburg by Dr. James F. Duffy. Last June Dr. Duffy first called the attention of the Hero Fund Commission to the life-saving record of Mr. Baxter. July 1 last the physician received information as to how the formal application with the facts in the case or cases should be made out for the help of the manager of the commission, F. W. Wilmot. Dr. Duffy is interested in securing a fund for the support of Mr. Baxter's widow and two children. Dr. Duffy stated that Mr. Baxter had participated in more than 30 rescues, of which he has fragmentary details and facts of which he would be able to obtain, if they would strengthen the case.

A daring break in the Elmwood district was discovered yesterday at the drug store of Charles A. Gladding, on Elmwood avenue, Providence, the thieves securing $12 for their trouble. The goods in the store were not disturbed, money being the sole object, apparently, of the visitors. At midnight the patrolman on the first relief tried the doors at the store and found everything in good condition. He then went along on his beat and an hour later was relieved by a man on the other shift. The two met at the corner and soon after the second man, accompanied by Sergeant W. A. O'Brien, went to the drug store to try the doors again. From the street everything appeared all right, but when they went around in back of the store, they found a screen torn off and a window open. Investigation showed that the money drawer had been forced open and its contents taken. There is no clue to the robbers.

The Rhode Island Library Association will hold its fifth annual convention at the People's Methodist Episcopal Church, Park and Elmwood avenues, Auburn, December 27. Delegates interested in library work from all parts of the state are expected to attend the sessions, which will be held morning and afternoon. President H. L. Copeland will preside and among the speakers who will address the delegates will be Professor Walter Ballou Jacobs of Brown University.

TWO EGGS A DAY FROM A HEN.

In a recent issue of Science, Professor Gilman A. Drew, who has been conducting experiments in connection with the egg-laying possibilities of hens at the Maine Experiment Station, quotes instances of hens which have laid two eggs within 24 hours. The most interesting case is that of a pullet, which apparently laid two eggs in one day early in March, 1906.

During March and April there are records of five days on each of which this hen laid two eggs. Although she was carefully watched for more than a year and a half, there are no other records of her having laid more than one egg in a day. It should be added that the records of days on which she was known to lay two eggs came during the months of her greatest egg-producing activity.

Professor Drew has noted a number of instances of hens laying two eggs in a day, but the records show that in most cases on either the day before or the day after that on which two eggs were deposited no egg was laid. Such cases may reasonably be accounted for by supporting premature or delayed delivery, but this cannot be true of the hen whose record has been given, where, for the five days beginning with April 3 and ending with April 7, eight eggs were laid.

There are two other instances where an average of more than one egg in a day for a limited period was made. In both of these cases the possible mistake in the reading of the numbers on the distinguishing bands by which the hens are identified is to be considered.

There are eight other instances recorded where hens laid two eggs in a day, but in all of these cases on either the day previous or succeeding the day on which two eggs were laid no egg was laid.

More interesting than these abnormal occurrences is the report of hens which at the station have laid 255 eggs within 12 months

A RARE TRIBUTE.

All Classes Honor Memory of Clarence A. Hammett.

United Congregational Church Filled With Friends and Business Associates of Deceased.

Newport paid a tribute to one of her citizens today which is rarely paid on a working day, when a large number attended the funeral services at the United Congregational Church for the late Clarence A. Hammett. In the gathering, which filled to overflowing the large auditorium, there were men representative of every class of life in the city—men of business, clerks and employes in stores and shops, workmen in various walks of life, and men and women who as members of the Newport Co-operative Society for Saving and Building had found in the deceased one ready to help and encourage them in their efforts to save and build homes for themselves.

The various organizations of which Mr. Hammett was a member were well represented, the board of directors of the saving society, the employes of the custom house and other officials occupying special seats in the body of the church, and the Masons, Elks and Odd Fellows filling all the seats reserved for them and many more. It was a gathering which in itself was a remarkable tribute to the man, and made a eulogy from the preacher unnecessary.

The services, which were of the simple character customary in the church, were conducted by the pastor, Rev. James Austin Richards, and consisted of prayers and appropriate Scripture readings. The choir—Messrs. N. T. Hodson and J. A. Hildreth, Miss Mary Leonard and Mrs. N. T. Hodson—sang "Rock of Ages," and "Lead, Kindly Light," and Mr. Augustus H. Swan sang Herbert Johnson's "Face to Face." Mr. Alfred G. Langley played appropriate selections on the organ before the service and accompanied the singers.

There was a wealth of floral tributes, from personal friends, business associates and organizations, the flowers filling a large space in front of the pulpit, and also covering the heavy oak coffin in which the body rested.

The body was escorted from the house by Rhode Island Lodge of Odd Fellows, Weonat Shassit Tribe of Red Men, Newport Lodge of Elks and St. Paul's Lodge of Masons, with W. C. Metcalf as marshal. After the services at the church the body was escorted to the Island Cemetery, where the interment was in the family plot, the Masons performing the burial rites of the order at the grave.

The bearers were William P. Clarke, and Elmer E. Nickerson, from St. Paul's Lodge; A. B. Commerford and James R. Crowley, from the Elks; A. W. Amey and Walter Dennis, from the Red Men, and Jeremiah W. Horton and A. J. Kessell, from the Odd Fellows.

Among those present, outside of organizations, were John Hare Powel, Thomas P. Peckham, T. T. Pitman, William Hamilton, Robert S. Franklin, Dr. William C. Stoddard, William H. Sullivan, William C. Scott, Harwood F. Read, Ralph R. Barker, Angus McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burlingham, Colonel and Mrs. William P. Sheffield, Lieutenant Colonel J. E. POLICE COMMISSION BUSINESS.

The Police Commission had a quiet time last evening at the first of the sessions for hearing remonstrances against the granting of liquor licenses which have been applied for. There was one written protest, signed by several of the owners in the vicinity, against the granting of a license at 10 Franklin street. It is understood that the objection is to having any license on that street. There was a verbal objection to the granting of a license to William O'Neill, at 448 Thames street. Action on the granting of licenses will be taken at the next meeting. Joe Mirsch was refused a peddlers' license.

AN IDEAL FALL DAY.

No one can say anything against the weather today, unless it be the coal dealers and those who wish to supply furnaces and stoves, or sell winter clothing. It is an ideal fall day, with brilliant sunshine and a warmth which makes one feel that spring has come. Still, there are some who say it is a weather breeder; they do not seem able to enjoy things when they come right, but must get out their snow shovels and look them over for fear that some time it will snow.

DENS OF VICIOUSNESS.

Chicago Instructors Make Grave Charges Against Chapter Houses.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Chapter houses of high school fraternities in Chicago were pointed out last evening as dens of viciousness, in which gambling, drinking, smoking and profanity flourished, and orgies last until the small hours. High school and college instructors made the charges at a conference of parents and principals on the fraternity problem at the Chicago Normal School. The "Frat" house was described as an "instrument of the Devil" and a "plague spot," and the fraternities, including the sororities, or societies of girl pupils, were branded with a score or more of degenerating influences, mentally, morally and physically.

CHICAGO'S OPEN SUNDAY.

Tomorrow a Most Forceful Attempt to Close Saloons Will Begin.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Numerous meetings were held yesterday by both proponents and opponents of the Sunday closing movement, and the lines were drawn tighter in preparation for the test of tomorrow, when the most forceful attempt to close saloons in Chicago will begin. All over the city temperance workers will gather evidence showing violations of the Sunday closing law. The saloon men are talking of seeking a court injunction against interference with their open-Sunday privileges.

ROOSEVELT AND BRYAN.

Confer in President's Private Office at the White House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Roosevelt and William J. Bryan were in conference for half an hour in the President's private office at the White House today.

ADMIRAL THOMAS CAMP.

Rear Admiral Thomas Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, held its semi-monthly meeting last evening and mustered in three recruits. Committees were appointed for the celebration of the second anniversary of the institution of the camp and for the giving of a social.

Respect for the service uniform was discussed, along the line that the wearers should demand respect through their exemplary conduct. How to impress upon the men, particularly the novices, that they should take great precaution not to disgrace the uniform was a phase of the subject which was debated to considerable extent, and it was intimated that when petty officers are sent over from the Station to watch and restrict the uniformed men while on liberty the local police make their work difficult and at times entirely lose effect. A case was cited where a petty officer was taken to the police station and detained there, because of exercising authority vested in him by Captain Sawyer.

FISHERMEN TAKE UP TRAPS.

The fishermen who go out for cod are not having much success and the trap fishermen have practically abandoned the field. There is but one trap in now, that of Anderton at Narragansett Pier, Captains Joseph Church and W. R. Rose having taken up their last trap yesterday. They say four barrels of fish a day will not pay running expenses. Last year they ran until nearly Christmas time and landed about 2,500 barrels of codfish as a result of their winter trapping. Things are different this season.

Mr. Leeds is transacting business at his home on Fifth avenue today, but expects to be at his office again next week.

MUST GO ABROAD TO FORTIFY FLEET

Legislation Urged to Allow Department Purchases.

Ordnance, Projectiles and Torpedoes Needed at Once.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Naval necessities are such that the domestic manufacturers are unable to supply within a reasonable time ordnance, projectiles, powder and torpedoes for the fleet, and Rear Admiral M. E. Mason, chief of the bureau of ordnance, in his annual report to the Secretary of the Navy strongly urges legislation that will authorize the department to purchase such material when "it is to the manifest interest of the United States to make purchases in limited quantities, abroad, which materials shall be admitted free of duty." He says that the torpedo situation is such that 100 of these weapons should be purchased abroad immediately, while American manufacturers are completing their present contracts and the government factory is being put in running order. There is also urgent necessity for going abroad to secure armor-piercing projectiles and range finders, which American manufacturers are unable to produce.

Admiral Mason finds it necessary to replace all the present 8 and 12-inch guns by others of a later and stronger design, to admit of the use of smokeless instead of brown powder. Only two firms are attempting to furnish the navy with projectiles of large calibre, and the deliveries are far behind and the status far from satisfactory. For that reason authority is asked to purchase such projectiles abroad.

Admiral Mason makes a strong plea for an appropriation to defray the cost of manufacturing and assembling at two points (one on the Atlantic and the other on the Pacific) a supply of guns, ammunition and such material as may be needed by the navy to rapidly fortify strategic points that may be seized in time of war, as advance bases of operations against an enemy, pointing to the lessons of the Spanish war and the successful operations of the Japanese as proof of the wisdom of establishing these depots.

Under the head of armor, it is stated that the specifications have been so modified as to allow the armor makers much freedom regarding the materials and methods of manufacture, in order to stimulate research on their part and develop better armor. An item of $200,000 is included in the estimates for experimental work.

NEW YORK SHOW CLOSES.

America Expected to Lend the World in High-Class Saddle Horses.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—That America will soon lead the world in saddle horses, as she now does in harness horses, is one of the deductions made by enthusiasts attending the horse show, which ends today. This fact became more and more apparent as the exhibition neared its close, and today many horsemen whose judgment is considered eminently sound in questions of this sort had no hesitation in predicting that the United States promises to surpass even England in the production of hunters and jumpers and high-class riding animals. The Jockey Club is credited with being largely responsible for the already great development in animals of this class, and will continue its policy of fostering their breedings, as well as that of racers.

Ponies occupied most of the judge's attention at the opening hours today, but roadsters, four-in-hands, cavalry horses, saddle horses, hunters and jumpers also came in for awards before the close of the exhibition.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondent to the News.]

The firemen gave the first of their series of whists and dances last evening in the hall of the Gardner House. The first part of the evening was devoted to progressive whist. Mrs. C. E. Weeden and Miss Ruth Knowles were tied for the women's first place, the latter winning on the cut. Messrs. E. Wilson and W. E. Clarke were also tied for the men's first. Mr. Clarke winning on the cut. Miss Gertrude Downing and Mr. P. H. Blackwell were awarded the consolation prizes. After the whist light refreshments were served and the floor was cleared for dancing. Although the weather was threatening the attendance was large.

Miss Sadie St. Clair of Newport is guest of Miss Marguerite Watson on Clinton avenue.

After two days of enforced idleness on account of the weather the fishermen are out today.

Miss Gertrude Downing of Newport, was guest last evening of Miss Ethel Sowle.

Mr. Edward Hoyle and family are moving today from the island to Newport.

Mrs. A. R. Cory and Miss Mabel Watson are in Providence for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Fuller and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fuller are guests of Captain and Mrs. C. L. Champlin on Bryer avenue.

Captain J. P. Cotton of Newport was on the island today.

Steamer Tennessee of the Joy line will stop here tomorrow morning to land freight left in New York by the discontinuing of the Enterprise line.

The ferry will change its time table Monday, omitting one trip in the forenoon and one in the afternoon.

A WILD WEST SHOW.

Spectacular Attack on the Stage Coach But No Capture by the Indians.

Washington square was turned into a Wild West show ground last evening, and even the traveling shows present no wilder scene than the attack on the prairie schooner last night. Half a hundred men were required for this climax of the week of parades, half of these representing redskins and the other half cowboys and settlers. For the prairie schooner one of the army transport wagons, with canvas top and drawn by four horses, was used. Within it were men who later participated in its defense, the horses were driven by outriders and mounted cowboys rode as its body guard.

After the parade had gone down Thames street and back a halt was made just before the Parade corner was reached and the schooner and its escort proceeded ahead. As it started up the square the Indians began a wild dash after it, and for a while the scene had a realism which cannot be worked out on the stage. The crowd fell back from the plunging horses, while the Indians yelled and revolvers were discharged right and left. The attacking force found a well armed party in charge of the schooner, and no capture was effected when the length of the square had been run.

The mounted portion of the parade then returned to the lower part of the square, where the band had taken position. Many of the spectators had crowded in about the band, and before they realized it were hemmed in by a string of prancing horses, which circled about while the band played a war dance. It was noticeable during this part of the performance that the horses had become well trained by their week's work, for many of them were doing their usual while the riders dropped the reins and used their hands to flourish their spears, tomahawks and revolvers. It was also noticed that the discharging of the firearms had less effect on the horses than on most of the crowd.

It was not alone a great sight for the small boys, who perched wherever they could secure a vantage point, but hundreds of men, women and children turned out to see the sight and went away well satisfied. The Red Men have attempted parades for their leading posts before, but never before have they been so successful in presenting a free show as this year. To many it seemed almost as if a part of Buffalo Bill's show was in town when the parade passed. The most conspicuous figure, of course, was Big Chief Yokel, on his high-bred stallion. One would hardly expect to see such a high-strung animal in the parade, and yet the horse was always under perfect control. He seemed to dance to the music of the band and with his mount made a fine picture.

At the hall there was another large crowd.

ALDERMANIC CANDIDATES AND THE CLOSING OF HIGHWAYS.

To the Editor of the News:

We will soon be called upon to elect a new Board of Aldermen, and as one or more of the new candidates have been active in circulating petitions to give away some of the public thoroughfares of the city for private use and benefit, it is a matter worthy of consideration whether such men should be returned as members of the board. Presumably, if the subject should come up for action during their term of office, they would vote for the measure, and the people have now an opportunity to show whether or not they will endorse a man with such a record, or show to the present Board of Aldermen their disapproval of the project.

Mr. Kelly has put himself on record as opposed to the grant, and, as we are to have a change in membership from the Fifth ward, he is a safe man to support.

NEWPORT HOSPITAL.

(Legal Title.)
A Strictly Private Institution.
Incorporated 1873.

With its patients in the various wards of the Hospital, and with its out-patient departments and district nursing service the Newport Hospital covers quite well the needs of the sick poor of Newport. It deserves and asks the liberal support of all who are interested in caring for or in any way relieving suffering humanity.

"An institution of beneficence may be without dishonor a perpetual mendicant upon the charities of the community.

That which it is always giving it may be always receiving.

It is the incoming and outgoing of the heavenly breath of Charity."

KING'S DAUGHTERS IN SESSION.

Twelfth Annual Convention of the Order Held in Central Falls Shows Growth of Order.

Reports which showed progress during the year just past and an increase of membership in many circles, with a revival of enthusiasm in branches which had before shown some symptoms of lack of interest, were given at the twelfth annual convention of the Rhode Island Branch of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons, held yesterday.

The morning session was called to order by the state secretary, and devotional exercises were led by Rev. Levi B. Edwards, chaplain of the Society of King's Daughters and Sons. The first business was organization for the coming year, consisting of the appointment of committees.

The state officers are: State secretary, Mrs. Sarah Miller Corey, Pawtucket; recording secretary, Mrs. Clara Smith Raymond, Providence; treasurer, Mrs. Carrie K. Shaw, Providence; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lillian L. Daniels, Central Falls. The executive committee includes Mrs. Hortense E. Bullock, Providence; Mrs. Lelia B. Manchester, Newport; Mrs. A. Barber, Phenix; Mrs. Addie E. M. Hilker, Lonsdale, and Miss Nettie Kinyon of Pawtucket.

An address of welcome was given by Mrs. Emma Brown, in behalf of the entertaining circle. Mrs. A. A. Barber responded.

Minutes of the last convention were read by Mrs. Clara Smith Raymond and Mrs. Sarah Miller Corey read the report of the state secretary. Reports of Recording Secretary Mrs. Raymond and of the corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lillian L. Daniels, were read and approved. There were followed by the reports of the treasurer, auditor, committee on credentials, delegate to local council, read by Mrs. Hortense E. Bullock, Mrs. Maud S. Andrew, Mrs. Esther Wolcott, Mrs. Eliza A. Kault, Mrs. Eldora A. Rouve and Mrs. Jennie M. Bliss.

A report on the Emily S. Chase Memorial Home was read by Mrs. Bullock. This was followed by a report of the treasurer of the fresh air department, Mrs. Carrique.

The address of the morning session was made by Rev. Levi B. Edwards. "The Kings Sons" was the subject of an address by General Thomas W. Chase.

The afternoon session opened with an organ prelude by Mrs. Davis, followed by devotional exercises led by Rev. T. Richard Peede, pastor of the entertaining church. Mrs. Hortense E. Bullock, in her report of the fresh-air department, spoke especially of the work accomplished at the Emily S. Chase Memorial Home.

After solos by Miss Greenhalgh and Mrs. F. W. Rich, the invitation of the Central Baptist Church of Providence was accepted and the next meeting will be held with Royal Circle of that parish.

The convention was attended by 116 delegates, representing 26 circles, including Whensoever and Knight Errant Circles of Newport.

A feature of the afternoon session was an address by Rev. Lucian W. Rogers, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church of Central Falls.

CAUSE OF RECENT PANIC.

Opinions of Experts Differ on Some Points, But All Say It Has Been Anticipated for Some Months.

From the point of view of the man in the street the most interesting article in the December Everybody's is a discussion of "What Caused the Panic," by Lyman J. Gage, ex-Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, James J. Hill, Stuyvesant Fish, Byron W. Holt, editor of Moody's Magazine, W. G. Sumner and Thomas W. Lawson. The opinions of these experts differ on some points, but all agree that the present crisis has been widely anticipated for many months. Mr. Gage thinks that the crisis is due primarily to a weak currency system, but he also believes that the recent wars, natural disasters, and vastly augmented building enterprises have been serious contributory causes. Mr. Gage says in part:

"A modest estimate of the destruction wrought by the Spanish-American war, the Boer war, and the war between Russia and Japan is $3,000,000,000, and to this should be added at least $500,000,000 of property swallowed up in the San Francisco and the Chilian earthquakes of last year. All this vast sum, if not destroyed, would have been available for useful works of value to man. During the past few years, also, there has been an unprecedented activity in the creation of works ministering to human needs. The construction of railways, electric-lighting plants, cotton-mills, steamships, etc., in the past six years has used up no less than $5,000,000,000. Capital thus transferred and fixed in permanent form has been gradually furnished by those who possessed it, and in place of it the possessors have been supplied with securities, such as stocks and bonds, from which they might expect to draw an income over an indefinite future.

"The creation of these vast works has been justified by the needs of a progressive civilization, but that does not nullify the fact that capital once transferred to the creation of railroads and similar enterprises no longer exists in available form for other purposes. It has been further evident to thinking persons that the pressure for the use of capital has increased and the supply of capital. It is much easier and quicker to plan schemes, pass resolutions in directors' meetings, print and offer bonds and stocks for sale, than it is to gather the capital to exchange for them, no matter how meritorious an enterprise may be. What we lately reached a period when the deadlock between capital and the demand for it was manifest is shown by the higher terms of interest offered by conservative enterprises. In fact, long-time bonds could find no buyers, during the past year. * * * In the exigency thus revealed the great borrowing enterprises, finding it impossible to negotiate long-time bonds, resorted to the device of issuing short-time notes running for one, two and three years, at the most tempting rates of interest. Under these unusual inducements, the controllers of capital represented by money and credits in bank, who would have considered it imprudent to invest funds in long-time bonds, felt justified in taking over hundreds of millions of dollars of short-time securities, and thus the deficiency of the situation was greatly aggravated.

"This was about the situation in the early fall, when the annual harvest put in its inexorable demand for the temporary use of capital. It is a known fact that the thousands of banks standing next in proximity to the agriculturist keep a large portion of their funds on deposit in reserve cities. Upon these reserve centers, then, the country banks from Louisiana to Minnesota made their usual autumnal requisitions. The situation thus created found the banks in reserve cities especially weak in their money reserves. With a proper system of currency in the United States, this strain from the country would have been met by bank credits issued in the form of circulating notes, fully qualified and entirely adequate to meet the temporary requirements of the crop period. But in the absence of any such system, these requisitions from the interior upon New York banks had to be met out of the already scant supply of their legal money reserves. The withdrawal of these reserves operated upon the great superstructure of bank credit like the removal of foundation-stones from under some great building. To restore equilibrium, the banks in reserve centers were obliged to turn upon their borrowers and force payment from their debtors with little regard to the inconvenience or the loss incidental to liquidation by the debtor class. All the phenomena of shock—a horrible fall in the price of securities—fright, and panic were the final result of the movement sketched. This was a natural and inevitable consequence from the lack of a proper system of currency."

KAISER DESIGNS HIS WIFE'S GOWNS.

[Dellmetor.]

The German Emperor is rather notoriously careful about the expenditures of his household. He is eager to restrict feminine virtues within the category of his "three c's"—church, children and cooking—but he is not willing to allow an occasional fault in the nature of some small extravagance. The emperor has always made himself the overseer of his wife's wardrobe. In fact, Madame Waldeck-Rousseau, wife of the former French premier, declares that the emperor once asked her if her husband ever designed her dresses. In some astonishment she replied that he never did. "Ah," said the kaiser, complacently, "I always design the state robes of the empress. But as the French do not like the Germans, and as the kaiserin is notoriously badly dressed, this story may have been a little patriotic revenge on the part of the Frenchwoman!

ASKS EMPEROR'S TRUST.

Lower House of Parliament Hopes to Justify Confidence in It.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 23.—The text of the address of the lower house of Parliament to Emperor Nicholas is as follows:

"Most Gracious Sire: Your Imperial Majesty has deigned to greet the members of the third Duma and to invoke the Almighty's blessing on the legislative work before us. We, therefore, take the liberty to express personally to Your Imperial Majesty our feelings of gratitude to the supreme head of Russia, and our thanks for the right of popular representation granted to Russia and secured by the fundamental laws of the empire. Have confidence in us, Sire. We wish to devote all our ability, knowledge and experience to strengthening the form of government which was given new life by the Imperial will in the manifesto of October 30, 1905, to pacify the fatherland, to assure respect for the laws, to develop popular education, to promote the general welfare, to be a buttress for the greatness and power of indivisible Russia, and to thereby justify the confidence reposed in us by His Majesty and the fatherland."

MANY MILLS CURTAIL.

Massachusetts Manufacturers Close or Operate on Part Time.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Manufacturers in this state continue to curtail production. The Seamster Woolen Company and W. E. Haywood & Co., woolen manufacturers, both of East Douglas, announce that their mills will be operated but four days a week after this week.

The Mayo Woolen Mills of Millbury were closed today for a week, and in Melrose the Boston Rubber Shoe Company closed its plant until December 31. The Malden factory of the company shut down for ten days. The Boston Rubber Shoe Company employs 3,000 hands.

Beginning next Monday, the Windsor Print Works of Adams will run four and a half days a week until the market improves.

The Orange shirt factory of Orange closed today for two weeks.

$15,000,000 PAY ROLL.

Perhaps the Largest in the History of Pittsburg Was Made Today.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 23.—One of the largest, if not the very largest, pay rolls in the history of Pittsburg will be made today by railroads and iron and steel plants. The grand total, as estimated by leading bankers, is $15,000,000. Clearing House checks will be used generally.

TO RESUME ON CASH BASIS.

Chicago Clearing House Association Seeking Index of Country's Feeling.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—A step looking towards the resumption of business on a cash basis has been taken by the Chicago Clearing House Association. Letters have been mailed to bankers of the middle and western sections of the country, asking them to express their opinion on the situation. These statements will be tabulated and used by the Chicago financiers as an index of the feeling outside of New York.

There was a general expression favoring this move, in a meeting of the association. James H. Eagan, president of the First National bank, presided. Copies of the letter were sent yesterday to every banker west of Pittsburg to the Pacific coast, and it is expected that replies will begin to come in by tomorrow. Answers to letters sent to the farthest points, however, cannot be received before the end of next week.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Frederick Manuell, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '99, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the germ gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Two sizes—50 cents and $1.00.

WILL NOT RETURN TO BELGIUM.

Princess Elizabeth Leaves Prince Albert, Heir to the Throne.

VIENNA, Nov. 23.—A Brussels despatch, published in the newspaper Die Zeits, reports that Princess Elizabeth has left her husband, Prince Albert of Belgium, heir to the throne, and will not return to Belgium. She is said to be with her parents in Munich. Prince Albert, who is the son of King Leopold's brother, the late Phillippe, Count of Flanders, was married to Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria in 1900. They have three children.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Eighty-Seven Hundred Costly Fires in a Year.

Harbor Improvements Move Slowly—Eagle Scares East Side—Finger Watch the Latest.

[Correspondence of the News.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—With the United States leading all other nations in fire losses every year, New York as the largest city in the country naturally takes first place in this respect in the metropolitan list throughout the world. Every day there are 24 fires here, taking the average, or a total of 8,700 each year. Throughout the whole country, indeed, nearly one half the buildings erected in the course of a year go to replace others which have been destroyed by flames, according to statistics which form the basis of a study of the national loss by fire which is to appear in the next number of Appleton's Magazine.

The compiler of these statistics asserts that while no other nation builds as much as the United States, no other burns even a small fraction of the same amount of valuable property. The figures show that in the country at large $3,500,000,000 worth of property has been destroyed by fire in the past 25 years, while 1,000,000 buildings have been wiped out of existence in 10 years. The cost of fire-fighting is given as $300,000,000 a year and $195,000,000 is paid over to the insurance companies for protection. Conflagrations consume on the average every week 6 theatres and public halls, 12 churches, 10 schools, 8 public institutions, 9 department stores and apartment houses, 26 hotels, 140 flats and 1,600 individual homes. Thirty six thousand lives are reported to be endangered every day by fire, while 7,000 lives are sacrificed annually to the same cause. It is said that 75 per cent of all the damage done by fire to buildings aside from those in which it originates is due to improperly constructed windows.

Milk at $10 per gallon, pork at $118 per pound chickens at $35 a pair and cows at from $300 to $3,500 each: these are not panic prices in New York, but the cost figures of the city's most expensive farm which is now to be discontinued. Surprising as these figures may be they are those of the cost of various articles produced by Mr. Willets, the owner of the most costly farm in the world, which is run on scientific and cleanly principles—so scientific and cleanly indeed that a meal consisting of a single slice of bacon and a glass of milk from this farm would cost more than the average family spends on food in several days.

The cowsheds were all constructed of concrete with no corners and every morning after the cows were turned out the whole structure was scrubbed and scalded. At milking times a corps of milkmen, clad in sterilized white duck suits, appeared with sterilized milk stools and sterilized milk pails to extract pure milk from cows after sterilizing them by bathing, an extremely expensive proceeding resulting in milk costing $10 a gallon to get and selling for 60 cents in an exclusive market. The same process applied to the care of pigs resulted in a cost price of pork of $118 per pound, which is certainly a figure to make the beef trust envious. With chickens, the same tender care resulted in a cost of $17.50 for each, on which basis a single drumstick would be worth about $5. To these prices ordinary business methods would add a percentage for profit and the resultant figures are so staggering that it is no wonder that scientific methods, carried to the extreme, have received a black eye in the discontinuance of the costliest farm in the world.

While NewYork feels that the $965,000 for harbor improvements which it is reported Congress will be asked to appropriate for carrying on a year's work is entirely inadequate, there is nevertheless some satisfaction expressed that anything at all may be done. The metropolis comes pretty near holding the long distance record for delays in necessary harbor improvements as instanced in the case of the Harlem river, the busy little stream connecting the East river with the Hudson, whose commerce last year amounted to nearly $300,000,000.

Twenty-nine years ago, that is in 1878, the improvement of the Harlem on a plan estimated to cost $2,700,000 was undertaken. Up to date the work is only about half completed, so that with changed conditions a quarter of a century has accomplished very little. But more ambitious plans are under way as a result of the city's awakening to the needs of her waterfront. Gustave H. Schwab is to attend the convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington in the first week of December, to voice the feeling of the metropolis in advocating the adoption by Congress of a systematic national plan of river and harbor improvements, for which the waterway advocates are working.

Reviving old memories of the real leopard hunt in New York more than a quarter of a century ago, and the press agent's scare by which it was reported at an equally remote period, to the terror of the whole city, that several circus lions confined in a stable had broken loose and were devouring horses and men, was the appearance on the east side of the city this week of a real eagle. The bird was the kind described in school books as "noble" with a measurement of "12 feet from tip to tip, capable of carrying off and devouring a good sized child."

Attention was first drawn to the eagle by his unsatisfactory attempt to grab and devour a wooden advertising sign in the shape of a woolly lamb immediately after this attempt mothers on the crowded east side became particularly busy in gathering up their children. Indeed, what almost amounted to a panic ensued all because of the child-devouring feathered monster. Meanwhile the eagle, the pest (he city has seen, except in captivity, for nearly 50 years, lighted on a flagpole ornamenting the roof of a building. Two policemen, urged on by vociferous feminine cheers, quickly shinned up the pole in an attempt to capture the child snatcher, but although one of them succeeded in getting a grip on him, the first eagle which New York has seen in a third of a century sailed away without having devoured any children.

The finger watch is New York society's latest fad. As its name might indicate the new timepiece is one of almost microscopical dimensions set in a ring, exactly as a diamond might be, to be worn on one of the fingers of the right hand outside of the glove. The fad, like all others of its kind, is expensive, the cheapest of these tiny timepieces costing at least $100, from which point the price runs up rapidly according to the taste of the wearer in the matter of jeweled mounting.

The first of these Lilliputian watches recently made its appearance in a jeweler's window here only to be immediately purchased, and since then there has arisen a regular craze for them. As a woman is at present absolutely without pockets and as the custom of wearing a watch pinned to the dress has lost popularity, the finger ring watch seems likely to achieve great popularity. Some persons have been unkind enough to call it a ridiculous idea, but that of course is no reason why it should not become fashionable. The smallest of these new watches are hardly more than a quarter of an inch in diameter.

Longacre.

THE THIRTEEN CENT STAMP.

Postage That is Used for Registering and Mailing Foreign Matter.

[Washington Star.]

"Uncle Sam is not superstitious as regards the popular supposition that 13 is an unlucky number," said a clerk in the city postoffice, "as the government issues a 13-cent postage stamp which is an exceedingly serviceable piece of printed and gummed paper.

"Ask the average man to name for you the different denominations of postage stamps issued by the government, and he will be floored as completely as if he were asked to describe one or more of the printed pieces of paper which are used for money, though he may handle money in comparatively large quantities.

"The denominations of ordinary postage stamps now used by the government range from 1to to 6 cents consecutively, and then go to 8, 10, 13, 15 and 50 cents, the dollar denominations being $1, $2 and $5. It will be observed that there are not so very many denominations, after all, to meet all the various weights of mail matter which come in for transportation, but there are enough.

"The 13-cent stamp was especially designed to fit the registry fee of eight cents and the regulation postage of five cents on foreign mail matter, and thousands are annually sold to /persons living in this country who send registered remittances to friends and relatives abroad, many foreigners within our limits, especially Italians even registering their money orders. The 13-cent stamp is dark gray in color and bears the vignette of the late President Harrison.

"Postage stamps of the higher denominations—$1 and over—are of the same size as the lower denominations, and the five-dollar stamp might be mistaken in haste by some persons for the three-cent stamp, even though the colors do not coincide. The three-cent issue, to my mind, is perhaps as 'pretty' as any, being of a purple hue and finely executed. The coloring of all of our postage stamps is excellent, and from my standpoint far excels those turned out by any other government. The shades of our embossed stamps on our envelopes are considered very fine by experts.

"The number 13 runs in our stamped envelopes also, as we put these up in lots of 13 for collectors. Five cents is the highest denomination of the envelopes, and a complete set has a stamp value of 29 cents, to which we add a few cents for the paper.

"Yes, of the current issue of ordinary postage stamps and envelopes we sell during the course of the year a great many sets from the stamp window to home collectors and many more to foreigners traveling through Washington. A full set of the current issue below the $1 denomination costs $1.17, to which may be added the $8 for the higher denominations, 10 cents for the special delivery stamp and 33 cents for the set of stamped envelopes, making the total cost of a complete issue of the government's current postage stamps and stamped paper at $9.60.

"Of course, there are from time to time various exposition and special issues, which have an initial sale value according to their various denominations. Stamps of the Columbian, Trans-Mississippi, Pan-American or Louisiana Purchase series are no longer issued by the department, and they have been withdrawn from sale at postoffices, though stamps of these series in the hands of the public, as well as all other ordinary postage stamps issued by the United States since 1860, will remain good for postage indefinitely.

"Many people think, because the Philippines and the canal zone are possessions of the United States that our ordinary stamps are good on mail matter in these possessions. The rule, however, is that our ordinary postage stamps are good for postage in Guam, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Tutuila. The Philippine government has stamps of its own, and the rule is that United States postage stamps overprinted 'Philippines' will not be accepted for postage on matter mailed within the United States, and United States postage stamps without the 'Philippine' overprint will not be accepted for postage in the Philippine Islands. Therefore, matter bearing stamps thus overprinted deposited in our postoffices and addressed for delivery in the Philippines, unless it bears the card request of the sender, goes to the dead letter office.

"Hence, the same trouble arises as regards an interchange of postage stamps between senders in this country and our insular possessions as with foreign countries, and this suggests the issue and use of an international postage stamp which would be good in any country. The idea of an international postage stamp is a good one, though it is not a new one, but for various reasons which cannot now be gone into, such an issue has not been agreed upon by the different postal congresses. Consequently, if it is desired to send your correspondent in any foreign country return postage upon the reply you wish, you must send to him the necessary stamps of his own flag, whereas an international postage stamp would make this act as easy as it is now sometimes difficult to obtain the stamps in this country in the country in which your correspondent resides. Such a convenience for correspondents, however, ought and no doubt will in time be provided upon agreement with foreign postal administrations."

THE ONATIVIA—BARCLAY ENGAGEMENT.

The engagement was announced in New York yesterday of Miss Clara Wright Barclay, daughter of Mrs. Henry A. Barclay, to Mr. Jose Victor Onativia. Miss Barclay, who is attractive and talented, was introduced to society last winter, and was one of the members of the Junior League, an organization composed of debutantes of the winter. She is a fearless horsewoman and a fine whip. Mr. Onativia is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose V. Onativia of New York, and is a member of the Union, Racquet and other prominent clubs of that city.

It is probable the wedding will be celebrated early in April in Short Hills, N. J., where Mrs. Barclay has had a country place since she left Lenox, where the Barclay family lived for years. Mr. Onativia's fiancee is a sister of Mrs. J. Stevens Climan and Mrs. S. Oakley Vander Poel, Jr.

MAURETANIA 10 HOURS BEHIND.

Fails to Equal Lusitania; Forced to Ride Out Storm at Anchor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Looming up through a dense curtain of fog that hid the coast, the Mauretania, the biggest and most luxurious ship ever launched, finished in safety her maiden trans-Atlantic voyage when, at 11:03 o'clock today, she anchored off the Sandy Hook lightship. She made the trip from Queenstown in 5 days, 5 hours and 10 minutes.

Bearing $12,500,000 in gold for the money markets of the West, she fought her way through 3,000 miles of storm-swept ocean, in an attempt to meet and defeat the world's trans-Atlantic record of 4 days, 18 hours and 40 minutes, held by her sister ship, the Lusitania.

The Mauretania left Queenstown November 17 at 11 a. m., and arrived at Quarantine, New York, at 3:54 p. m. November 22. Her various speeds by days were: First day (one hour's run), 30 knots; second day (noon to noon), 571; third, 464; fourth, 563; fifth, 625; sixth, 528. The average speed for the passage was 22.21 knots, or 23.89 miles an hour. Her average speed on her record day run of 624 knots was 25.83 miles an hour. Her poorest day's average was 20.81 miles an hour, from noon of November 18 to noon of the next day.

Though the new liner demonstrated her ability to develop a higher speed for a day under favorable conditions than the Lusitania has thus far proved herself capable of, an uncommonly stormy passage and fog-enforced caution off the coast on arrival combined to increase her record time 10 hours and 30 minutes beyond that established by her sister ship. Captain Pritchard believes that in a fair weather passage he can beat the Lusitania.

The fact that even a vessel of the size and build and power of the Mauretania is to a certain extent at the mercy of the elements was borne in upon the liner's passengers when, in the forenoon of Monday, her second day out, she labored so hard in head seas that dishes were thrown from dining room tables and seasickness made prisoners by the score in cabins and steerage.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon Captain Pritchard ordered the engines stopped, and let go two of his anchors. Thus steadied, the Mauretania rode out the storm, but not without mishap. The battering force of the seas stove a forward starboard port, and before the damage could be repaired the floor of a storeroom in the hold was under two feet of salt water.

SILVERWARE UNEARTHED.

Silverware, evidently part of the treasures buried in odd nooks during the Revolutionary war, has been discovered near the home of Thomas W. Lister, at Sag Harbor, Long Island. The silverware indicated that it formed part of a valuable tea service, and bore the name "S. C. B. Conklin." The latter family owned much property at Sag Harbor in Revolutionary times, and its members were among the first settlers in that section.

Several years ago a pot containing about $400 in gold and silver coins was discovered at the same place when an old building was torn down. It is believed that there may be more treasures buried near the Lister home.

AROUND THE WORLD.

Colonel Robert M. Thompson of the New York Yacht Club and Party to Sail in the Mineola.

[New York Herald.]

When Colonel Robert M. Thompson, of the New York Yacht Club, and his guests join converted steamer Mineola at Gibraltar, in early December, they will find a comfortable and commodious vessel in which to make their contemplated cruise around the world.

The Mineola was a tramp steamer, and is 291 feet long, 51 feet beam and 28 feet deep, while her cargo carrying capacity is 8,000 tons. Under the direction of Messrs. Tams, Lemoine & Crane, of this city, she is now a pleasure craft, well adapted in every particular to the service intended. Of course, the old commercial ship's hull and machinery department are intact, but there have been many structural additions and alterations, the result of the requirements of Colonel Thompson.

In order to thoroughly provide for the comfort and convenience of Colonel Thompson and his party, a steel house, 75 feet long and the full width of the vessel has been constructed forward of the bridge house. This house contains nine staterooms and four bathrooms for Colonel Thompson and his guests; a pantry, three servants' rooms and a servants' bath In the central portion of the house there are three large rooms, each 20 feet 6 inches wide, and these extend the full length of the house, providing a dining room, a saloon and a smoking room. By the use of folding doors, these three rooms may be thrown into one room 72 feet long and 20 feet 6 inches wide. So, whatever the character of the entertainments or the receptions that Colonel Thompson may decide to give while in foreign waters, he will have a room of the most liberal size, charmingly decorated and handsomely fitted and furnished, that he can use for these functions. The headroom in this house is 8 feet 6 inches under the beams, and a large steel trunk over the saloon gives an additional headroom of 18 inches. Above the house is a spacious promenade deck, over which are fitted double awnings.

The quarters of Colonel Thompson and those of his guests are finished in white enamel, and the furniture is of mahogany.

The crew's quarters were moved from the forecastle to new quarters aft, and the additional stewards and others required by the yachting party have especially arranged rooms in the bridge house.

An owner's galley, entirely separate from the ship's galley, was built, as were rooms for the owner's trunks and stores. There has also been a large refrigerating plant installed, as has been an electric light plant for the whole ship, which will beat the owner's quarters, while a complete laundry, which will be in charge of two men thoroughly acquainted with the required work, has been provided, and this contains all kinds of machines for washing, drying and ironing. Electricity will play an important part in many ways in the vessel, for in addition to the light and heat it will furnish it will make comparatively easy much of the work that would otherwise be somewhat tedious.

In addition to the ships regular complement of boats there have been added two steam launches and a rowing boat. The vessel has also been supplied with rapid fire guns, which will be prominently placed on the main deck forward, while a stand of boarding pipes and cutlasses is arranged around the mast in the dining room and in a mahogany cabinet there will be found magazine guns, sporting rifles and shotguns.

And among the many minor things furnished the ship as the result of the experience and thoughtfulness of those in charge is an airtight closet in which to keep cigars.

It has required more than a month of hard work and the utmost diligence on the part of those in charge to alter and refit the Mineola for this cruise. Ordinarily, the additions and changes made would take as long again, but the Colonel asked that the ship be ready to leave New York by the middle of November and only by systematic and preserving supervision has the work been completed and the ship made ready for sea at the time required.

Mr. Frederick Gruger will be the only member of Colonel Thompson's party that will be on the Mineola when she leaves this port. All the others will join her, as before noted, with Colonel Thompson, at Gibraltar.

Under ordinary conditions—that is, when running on the line between this port and Galveston and ports in Europe—the Mineola had a crew of 35, including officers, engineers, sailors and stewards. During the cruise of Colonel Thompson this number will be increased.

The Mineola will be in command of Captain Henry Scott, one of the most careful and experienced officers in the employ of Messrs. T. Hogan & Sons, the owners of the vessel.

When Colonel Thompson left New York for Europe the itinerary of his cruise, so far as then thought out, was as follows:—

To Gibraltar, thence to Naples, where Colonel Thompson has many friends; to Malta, to Alexandria, where the party will leave the Mineola and journey up the Nile; to places along the Palestine coast, and possibly a journey inland; through the Suez Canal and the Red Sea, with stops as may be agreeable; to Bombay, Ceylon, Calcutta, Burmah, Siam and the British Straits Settlement, stopping for a time at Singapore; through the China Sea and visits to its ports as may be thought best; to the Philippine Islands, where there are many of the colonel's friends; to Japan and its various ports and through its Inland Sea.

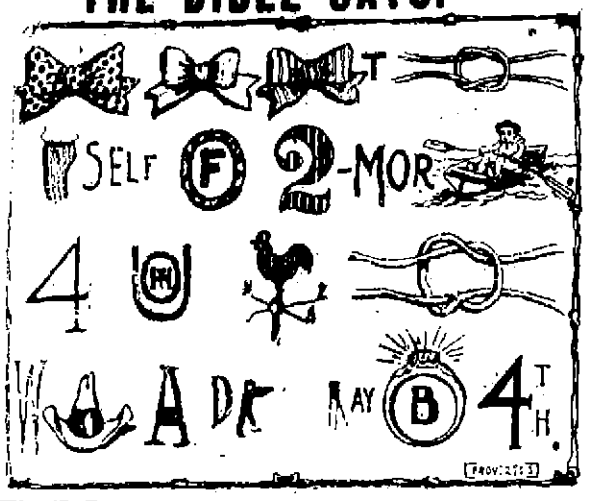

There the colonel's itinerary ended at the time he talked of it here at home. What he has determined upon since then time alone can tell.

PLANT INTELLIGENCE.

[John Burroughs in Outing Magazine.]

But as the animal is nearer ton us than the vegetable, so is animal intelligence nearer akin to our own than plant intelligence. We hear of plant physiology, but not yet of plant psychology. When a plant growing in a darkened room leans toward the light, the leaning, we are taught, is a purely mechanical process: the effect of the light upon the cells of the plant bring it about in a purely mechanical way, but when an animal is drawn to the light the process is a much more complex one, and implies a nervous system. It is thought by some that the roots of a waterloving plant divine the water from afar and run toward it. The truth is the plant or tree sends its roots in all directions, but those on the side of the water find the ground more moist in that direction and their growth is accelerated, while the others are checked by the dryness of the soil. An ash tree stands on a rocky slope where the soil is thin and poor, 20 or 25 feet from my garden. After a while it sent so many roots down into the garden, and so robbed the garden vegetables of the fertilizers, that we cut the roots off and dug a trench to keep the tree from sending more. Now the gardener thought the tree divined the rich pasturage down below there and reached for it accordingly. The truth is, I suppose, that the roots on that side found a little more and better soil and so pushed on till they reached the garden where they were at once so well fed that they multiplied and extended themselves rapidly. The tree waxed strong and every season sent more and stronger roots into the garden, ...

THE BIBLE SAYS:

MOTTOES ON COINS.

Many Legends or Inscriptions All in Latin, Fill Reverse Side of the Pieces.

President Roosevelt has eliminated the motto "In God We Trust" on a United States coin. He says "that to put such a motto on coins, or to use it in any kindred manner, not only does no good but does positive harm, and is in fact irreverence which comes dangerously near sacrilege."

The President, however, is not the only head of a government who in recent years has caused the removal of the motto on the coin of his country. The statesmen who are ruling France, in the earlier part of this year, decreed that the exhortation "Dieu portege la France!" (God protect France) shall not appear on the coin of the French Republic to be minted henceforth, as it does on the present coins. The explanation for France's action in the matter may be found in the fact that the European republic is at present under the absolute regime of radicals and anti-religionists, who have relegated everything pertaining to the Bible or religion to the background. President Roosevelt's action, according to a statement given out at the White House, was inspired by feelings of reverence for the words "In God We Trust" and his opinion that the placing of the motto on coin tends to cheapen it.

In this connection it may be of interest to know that for centuries the Popes expressed in Biblical phrases or moral sentences lessons of charity and kindness in the legends stamped on their coins. These coins have been out of circulation for a long time, but the Popes evidently believed that the instruments of charity should be regarded as preaching a sermon on charity. It would be impossible to relate here more than a few of these brief sermons which the Popes preached to the people over whom they ruled and which undoubtedly contributed to the exercise of the virtue of charity which was thus so universally calculated. The legends or inscriptions are all in Latin, and each almost fills the reverse side of the pieces, whether gold or silver. "There is no one wickeder than the miser" is the pronouncement made by a gold scudo (or crown) of Pope Innocent XI, who filled the Papal chair from 1676 to 1689. Another coin of the same Pontiff, a half scudo in value, says, "The miser will not be filled," and still another bears the phrase "The things preserved perish." Pope Clement XI (1700-1721) issued a silver coin on which it is said, "Silver kills many," and on a golden scudo he offers this counsel: "Obey not the empire of gold." "Do not desire money," is another counsel of his, and the suggestive phrase, "It is not for avarice" is seen upon another of these coins. "Care follows increasing wealth" cries out a coin of Pope Alexander VII.

And of how little use money will be when the curtain falls on life is brought home to the minds of most men by the warning that speaks from coins of Innocent XI: "They will not profit thee in the day of judgment." The pontificate of Innocent XI, though only 13 years in duration, seems to have been rich in the variety and beauty of the sayings on the coins issued. "He that loves gold will not be saved" is the motto on a golden crown, and another reads, "He who trusts in riches will fail." The same Pontiff asks: "What doth it avail a man? What doth it avail a fool?" and the question, meeting you on a coin, has a special directness that one cannot avoid.

Innocent XII speaks touchingly to those whose hearts are fixed on the accumulation of wealth when, on a coin of about two francs nominal value, he says, "Let it not be thy perdition." And the effect of avarice on the mind is admirably suggested by the words of another coin of the same Pope, "Money has no color for the avaricious." The money grabber is universally denounced. "Who is poor? The miser," is the question and answer which another coin gives. "What I have I give to thee," is the phrase on another coin on which is represented St. Peter healing the lame man. The bearer of the coin may not be able to heal otherwise than by giving what he has. Another pertinent question is asked on one of these pieces of money. "But these things which thou hast gathered, whose will they be?" Such a question must raise serious considerations in the minds of thoughtful men.

But the owners of money are recommended to bestow it well. Clement XI on a golden Julius says: "Let it abound to the glory of God." When rightly employed money may do much good, and this is declared by Clement X on the coin which bears this pronouncement. "It diminishes evil and increases good." And on another coin a generous giver is described. "He hath opened his hand to the needy." "Do not forget the poor," is the recommendation on the coins of two pontiffs. A piece of the value of a three-penny-bit bears this inscription. "A little to the just," and on a much smaller coin is the truism. "It hurts less." "Forbid that I should glory save in Thee," was the motto on the coin or medal of Pius V, which was made a memorial of the battle of Lepanto. "He who gives to the poor will not want" is a consoling reflection, as it suggests that the reward of the just will be bestowed soon on the charitable. "Use moderately like a man," is a saying that awakens universal response.

"That it may be given," tells the purpose for which the coin was struck—that is to say, to be passed on to those in want. "He lends to the Lord who has mercy on the poor," is the inscription on a silver piece of about eightpence nominal value. And so the series goes on in various phrases, all more or less directed to the objects already noted. These are the uses of wealth to which Popes called the attention of the possessors of money, and this throws light on the character of the Papacy.

AMERICAN FACTORIES LEAD IN OUTPUT.

[The Circle.]

The extent and the variety of its natural resources, as, in one particular field, is revealed by its mineral riches, is one the reasons why the United States heads the list of the world's nations in prosperity and progress. In the 10 years which have passed since the business revival set in at the close of the industrial stagnation of 1893-97, the country's population has increased 21 per cent. In those 10 years the value of its annual mineral output has expanded more than 200 per cent.

Those who take a gloomy view of the outlook for business in the United States should try to grasp the facts just presented. Here are a few more facts for them to ponder on: While the United States has only 5 per cent of the world's population it produces 20 per cent of the world's wheat 25 per cent of its gold, 33 per cent of its coal, 35 per cent of its manufactures, 38 per cent of its silver, 40 per cent of its iron, 42 per cent or its steel, 57 per cent of its petroleum, 55 per cent of its copper, 70 per cent of its cotton and 80 per cent of its corn.

William Stanley Jevons, the British economist, said in 1867 that when England lost her supremacy in coal and iron production her fall would be as sure as Rome's was after Constantine removed the capital to Constantinople, and after his sons divided the empire into three parts, and that the fall would be swifter than was Rome's. Forty years ago that seemed to be a safe forecast, for iron production in the United States in 1867 was less than a twenty-fifth part of what it is in 1907, and coal production was less than a fourtieth of what it is now

But the years which have passed since 1867 have told a tale which nobody in that day dreamed of. In the extent of its manufactures the United States passed England in 1889, and it passed England in iron and steel production in 1895, and in coal output in 1900. And in every one of these fields the United States' lead is rapidly lengthening. The wealth of the United States is $120,000,000,000, or more than that of its two nearest competitors, Great Britain and France, combined. Every successive sunrise sees $10,000,000 added to the market value of the tangible property of the United States.

SOUVENIR OF ST. GERONIMO.

[Washington Herald.]

An interesting souvenir of St. Geronimo, whose martyrdom consisted in being thrown alive into a block of setting concrete is at present on exhibition in the quarters of the Concrete Association of America, New York. It consists of a photograph of the cavity left by the saint's body, and was secured by Frank P. Baldwin, chief engineer of battleship Maine, while visiting Algiers.

According to history, there was born about the year 1520 an Arab boy named Geronimo. He was captured in infancy by the Spanish garrison at Oran, and when about eight years old escaped from his captors and went back to his family, living as a Mohammedan till the age of 25. He then voluntarily returned to Oran and resumed the Christian life which he had adopted previously when in the hands of the Spanish authorities.

A few years later he went on a roasting raid with a party of Spaniards, but the raiders were themselves captured by a Moorish Corsair and brought to Algiers. Here the attempt was made to convert him to Mohammedanism, but he persistly refused to embrace that faith, so that he was tried and condemned to die. His hands were tied behind his back and he was cast alive, face downward, into a block of concrete, then being prepared for the "Fort des Vingt Quatre Heures," then building. Careful note was taken of the spot by Haido, a Spanish Benedictine missionary to Algiers, who prayed the time might come when the Lord would pave the way for his exhumation and Christian burial.

In 1853 the French found it necessary to destroy the fort, and the data left by Haido was found to be correct, for the designated block of concrete, on being cut open, disclosed the bones of Geronimo and the cavity left by his body. The bones were removed, December 27, 1853, and given Christian burial, and they now rest in a massive stone sarcophagus in the cathederal. A plaster cast was made of the cavity and afterward photographed.

YALE MAKES BUT ONE TOUCHDOWN.

sent the ball to Coy, on Yale's 30-yard line. Starr interferred with the catch and Harvard was penalized 10 yards. With the ball in Yale's possession, on their 30-yard line, Coy kicked to Harvard's 20-yard line and Newhall ran it back to the 30-yard line before he was tackled. The first rush by Harvard was a loss. Then, on a delayed pass, Rand made 5 yards through right tackle.

With the ball in Harvard's possession on the 30-yard line Burr dropped back for a punt on the third down. He kicked the ball to Coy on Yale's 46-yard line and that player made a fair catch at that point. Bomar on the first play made 8 yards through the Harvard right end, and Brides made it the first down by making 3 more through the centre. The cheering up to this point was not so incessant as usual, and there was a strange silence, especially on the Yale side of the field.

With the ball in the centre of the field Coy made two yards through centre and then an onside kick sent it to Harvard's 22-yard line, where Howard Jones caught it and it was still Yale's ball. At this point Philbin went in for Bomar in the Yale line-up. Frequent injuries delayed the play so that the ball was a long one.

With the ball in Yale's possession on Harvard's 22-yard line Philbin found Harvard's left side weak and made 8 yards, the ball being placed on Harvard's 10-yard line. On the next play Philbin made sufficient distance for a touchdown, and it was Yale's ball, directly in front of Harvard's goal post.

Here the crimson team made a fine stand and Coy could get only three yards on the first down. On the second Philbin made 4 more, and it was Yale's ball on Harvard's 3-yard line, with the distance to goal to make it in one rush. Then came another delay on injuries.

The touchdown came only after the hardest kind of work by Yale. Harvard put up a fine defense beneath her own goal posts, Coy carrying the ball over and Bigelow kicking the goal.

On the kick-off Burr kicked to Coy, behind Yale's goal line. That player fumbled, but it was still Yale's ball on her 10-yard line. Coy kicked, on the first down, out of bounds, on Yale's 35-yard. In the first play Harvard sent the ball to Yale's 20-yard line, on a forward pass. At this point Parker attempted a goal from the field, but the ball was blocked. Starr, Harvard, caught the ball. With a few minutes to play Harvard attempted a forward pass, but this time it failed and Coy ran it back to Yale's 30-yard line, where play ended.

Score, first half—Yale 6, Harvard 0.

Summary first half: To the surprise of nearly 40,000 people, Harvard held Yale to a single score in the first half of the game. The Crimson defense, after the first five minutes of the game, astonished even her strongest supporters. Yale's attempt at running gen fake kicks, which worked so disastrously against Princeton last week, resulted a number of times today in losses for that side, of from 10 to 15 yards, while only once in the half did the forward pass net a gain.

During the half Yale suffered four penalties, when within 18 yards of the Harvard goal. Coy tried a goal from the field, in the first 5 minutes of play, from the Harvard 25-yard line, and failed. Parker tried one from Yale's 20-yard line, when Harvard had the ball by a fumble by the Blue. The Harvard captain's attempt was a poor one, as the ball did not reach the goal post. Kicking in the half was frequent and Coy had the better of it. The Harvard defense was a feature. The Crimson offense, however, was not particularly effective and only twice did Harvard make a first down.

THOUSANDS OF EXTRA SEATS.

Many Notable Persons in Crowd Witnessing Harvard-Yale Game.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 23.—Harvard square was bustling with activity and blossoming in two colors, the red and the blue, when the first of the army of 40,000 people, all eager for the football game between Harvard and Yale, reached Cambridge today. The old college buildings in the yard were resplendent with Harvard flags, and the stores in Harvard square were gayly decorated with both colors, while undergraduates, as well as old-time students, were rushing about receiving visitors.

Across the river on the greensward, which years ago was nothing but a salt marsh, rose the gray walls of the stadium, the scene of the day's contest. The long terraces of seats had been swept and cleaned in preparation of the crowds, and many thousand additional seats were provided for by the erection of a temporary stand at the open end, alongside the side lines, and on top of the great structure. The turf was well rolled, and entirely free from frost, but yesterday's moist weather had made it a trifle slippery, so that several hours before the game began it looked as if the players might find the footing uncertain, and quick starts almost impossible.

Despite the swarm of Yale enthusiasts, all sanguine of victory, the undergraduates of Harvard were still undismayed this forenoon, and appeared unanimous in their belief that their team would win, notwithstanding Yale's undoubted strength and the recent crimson defeats. Still, there was very little betting on the game, and what wagers were made were almost entirely on the matter of the size of the score or of Harvard's chances of crossing Yale's goal line.

Reports from the quarters where the two teams had spent the night were of an encouraging nature, and the different trainers had no hesitancy in stating that their charges were in excellent shape and, with a few exceptions, able to play 70 minutes of hard football. Neither team reached Cambridge until an hour or two before the time for the game to begin. The day was evidently entirely given up to the game, and practically all business in Cambridge, except that of entertaining the visitors, was forgotten.

Special trains bearing the last of the blue legions reached Boston frequently after 11 o'clock, and the great majority lingered long enough in the city only for a hasty luncheon before turning their steps to the stadium. Several thousand people, rather than risk meagre luncheon accommodations in the city, brought their own fare, and went out to Soldiers' field with the idea of having luncheon in their seats, so that the stadium, even at the noon hour, was the scene of considerable activity.

The weather, from the viewpoint of the thousands of spectators, was ideal, the day being typical of perfect Indian summer. The players, however, would have been better satisfied if the temperature had been several degrees lower, and the atmosphere more frosty and bracing.

In anticipation of a multitude of automobiles, the Harvard athletic management arranged for a broad parking space in the rear of the stadium, covering not only three other football fields, but two base ball diamonds. In addition, many of the residents of that portion of Brighton near the stadium threw open their yards for the accommodation of the motor cars.

The arrival of these great squadrons of powerful machines, nearly all gaily decorated with either blue or crimson flags, was one of the spectacular features of the day. Some of the cars were completely draped in bunting, while over the hoods in the rear were flung broad banners, with the words "Yale" or "Harvard" in white against the blue background or black against the red. Many of the cars mounted flagpoles, on which were flown broad streamers which snapped in the breezes as the automobiles scurried out to the stadium by the various roads.

In Boston the flower stores were thronged all the forenoon, and violets and crimson chrysanthemums were in such demand that the supply was exhausted long before the game began.

If anything, the weather improved as the day wore on, the sky became intensely blue, although the sun seemed to have a decidely crimson hue. The westerly breeze, however, had no wintorish bite to it, but, on the other hand, blew soft and mild down the valley of the Charles.

An hour or two before the time for the game to begin the following line-up was announced, subject to slight changes:

Harvard	Yale.
Starr, l. e.	l. e., H. Jones.
Burr, l. t.	l. t., Paige.
Parker, l. g.	l. g., Cooney.
Grant, c.	c., Congdon
Peirce, r. g.	r. g. Goebel.
Fish, r. t.	r. t., Bigglow.
MacDonald, r. e.	r. e., Alcott
Newhall, q. b.	q. b., Tad Jones
Wendell, l. h.	l. h., Brides
Rand, r. h.	r. h., Bomar
Appollonio, f. b.	f. b., Coy.

The crowd arrived unusually early at the stadium, at least 10,000 people being seated before 1 o'clock. From that time the approaches to the great amphitheatre, from both the direction of Harvard square and from Brighton and Allston, presented the appearance of two great streams of humanity, marching at a steady pace toward the scene of the game. There was not a break in the line after 1 o'clock until some time after the game began. The police would not permit marching over the old wooden bridge, which spans the Charles just east of the stadium, so that the crowd from that direction moved very slowly. On the other hand, the Allston concourse came in rapidly, and at least three quarters of the spectators reached the scene from that direction.

The Harvard undergraduate body, numbering 3,000 strong, reached the stadium at 1:20, and, after pausing at a locker room for a brief cheer for the team, re-formed and then marched to the stadium, the band playing a spirited march. The students reached their seats about 1:30.

Yale was a little late in arriving, but was nevertheless a strong delegation of people, carrying blue flags and decorated with blue ribbons, on the east side of the field. The blue supporters stationed a band in the middle of their section, but there was not music from that side until a few minutes before the game began.

The array of notable persons at the game was impesing. People who have attained international reputation gathered with those who have shown proficiency in other sports and in other lines of work. On the Yale bleachers, close to the side line, were 100 old Yale players who have made touchdowns and long runs in former contests. The same was true on the Harvard side. Stretching back in the long rows of seats, one could see the faces of the Duchess of Marlborough and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, daughter of the President, both of whom occupied seats on the Harvard side. Governor Guild and large delegations of state officials were early at the scene, and many leading New York financiers forgot the trials of Wall Street in order to be thrilled with the excitement of the game. The gay costumes made the scene brilliant on the Harvard side, crimson, of course, predominating, and the crimson hats and gowns which were worn by a vast majority gave the bank of people stretching up to the top of the arena a mas of brilliant color. On the other side, the more sombre blue of Yale was enlivened by a tinge of color which was somewhat lighter than the ordinary deep shade of the usual Yale.

The first burst of song came shortly after 1:30, when the Harvard band struck up "Up the Street," and the students joined with a grand swing. On the opposite side of the field the Yale band played the well known "Second Connecticut March," which has lived in musical favor for a quarter of a century.

Half an hour before the game Trainer Mack of the Yale team took Congdon, the centre rush, who played against Princeton last Saturday, and came off with an injured ankle, out for a little warming up, and to show his condition. Congdon was sent up and down the field outside the stadium for about 5 minutes and showed perceptible signs of his injury. Mack outsprinted him, and then the two lined up against each other, and here again the trainer overturned the centre, so that at that time it looked as if Dunbar would be in the centre for the Yale team.

Yale followed the Harvard singing by the famous Boola song, and then wound up by their equally famous cheer, which was given with great snap. From that time, 1:45, the singing and cheering on both sides of the field were practically incessant. The Harvard undergraduates reinforced their songs by the use of megaphones, so that they rolled up in great waves and echoed round the great arena.

Ten minutes before the game began it did not seem possible for any more people to find seats, yet the stream from across the river and from the other direction continued. The great concourse was filled by Harvard's great, swinging cheer for Yale, which was responded to by a cheer for Harvard from the wearers of the blue. This exchange of compliments was applauded by the crowd. The singing was then resumed. Harvard striking up the well known Marseillaise, which brought the entire Harvard side of the field to their feet in a great sweeping mass of waving color, while all the men took off their hats with reverence to their alma mater.

The Yale team reached the field at 1:55, Captain Bigelow running in ahead of his band of warriors from the far side of the Yale stand. The appearance of the blue-legged Yale players set the Yale stand wild with excitement, and they cheered and yelled, while the Harvard stand also cheered them as they appeared. The team lined up at once, and it was seen that Congdon was in his position at centre. Yale, in the preliminary warming up, tried no tricks, but simply ran through a number of old-time formations.

Harvard was late in appearaing, and it was after 2 o'clock before the team was seen coming out of the locker building.

PUMICE.

Island of Lipari a Connecting Link Between Ink Spots on the Hands and Volcanoes.

The connecting link between ink spots on the school child's hands and volcanoes is the island of Lipari hardly larger on the map than a pin prick, just north of Sicily. This island was blown up from the ocean bed some centuries before the Christian era and remains today, as it was for the ancients, the chief source of pumice that takes off the ink spots, this being due to old Stromboli, one of the most constantly active volcanoes of modern times.

There are no manufacturing plants or factories on Lipari, for pumice is produced by mightier forces than are at the command of man. This process first requires an active volcano, the submergement of its contents in water and the bringing of them back to the surface again—a simple yet titanic method. Man has, it is true, been able to produce an imitation article, but the good old kind that mother earth used to make and still makes remains in high demand.

There is but one industry on Lipari, the delving for and the preparation of pumice, and the life in nearly all its aspects is that of the tenth century. The highest wages paid are 23 cents a day to the expert pumice miners, but the old women and the boys receive only 6 cent a day of non-union hours. Selecting a likely spot, the Liparians, working in sets of a dozen, assault the mountainside and dig straight in toward the heart of the volcano. They do not bother to shore up or erect supports for the hole they dig, and every moment of the work is fraught with danger.

The dirt gray colored pumice is taken out in lumps as large as the miners can encircle with their arms, but these huge pieces can be easily lifted by the men and boys. Small and broken pieces are lumped together and receive the name of pezame, used for grinding into various grades of abrasive powder. A good miner takes out about 600 pounds in a day's work. The product is carried two miles to a drying room on the back of burros, and remains there until an Italian freighter arrives.

The greater part of the pumice comes to New York and is snaked from the holds of the freighters on to the Bush terminal, which, with its two miles of waterfront, forms a striking contrast to the little harbor of Lipari, which is without even a quay. Many of the stevedores who unload the pumice here have themselves bored into the sides of the volcanoes for the virgin product, but the scene is very different now, for all is hustle and bustling activity, freight cars rolling on to the piers and receiving merchandise from all parts of the world, in contradistinction to the quiet of Lituri.

Practically all the product is handled by a single mill in one of the factory buildings that for a part of the terminal, where, aided by all modern conveniences, the pumice enters upon its process of preparation within a stone's throw of the receiving dock. The pumice is reduced to powder, run through rotating steam driers and finally bolted through silk mesh into varying degrees of fineness suitable for the various uses to which it is put.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23, Wall Street—The stock market opened strong with Amalgamated Copper at 47, American Smelting 61⅝, Anaconda 31¾, Atchison 67½, Brooklyn Transit 29¼, Erie 12⅝, Great Northern preferred 112½, New York Central 93½, Northern Pacific 105⅝, Pennsylvania 108, Reading 73⅝, St. Paul 95½, Sugar 101⅝, Southern Pacific 66½, Union Pacific 109⅝, United States Steel 23½ and United States Steel preferred 81.

10—The first transactions in stocks were at higher prices than last night, the advance in Brooklyn Transit reaching 1½, New York Central and Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred 1½, Reading, Kansas & Texas preferred, Illinois Central, Atchison, St. Paul, Northern Pacific and Great Northern preferred 3, and Union Pacific, Erie United States Steel preferred and Anaconda large fractions.

11—The advance in the stock market gained further momentum, until practically every stock of recognized activity and prominence was selling a point or more higher than yesterday's closing. The demand then became less active, but prices were well sustained at the high level, Delaware & Hudson and General Electric gained 3, Republic Steel preferred 2¼, Union Pacific 2½ and Atchison and Reading 2. Canda Southern sold at an advance of 7 points, and International Paper preferred at a decline of 2½, with a rally of 2.

Closing—Money on call nominal, no loans; time loans, nominal; prime mercantile paper, nominally 8 to 10 per cent; sterling exchange, fairly steady at $4.87 @ $4.87.25 for demand and at $4.79.50 @ $4.80 for 60 day bills; commercial bills, 47½; bar silver, 58⅝; Mexican dollars, 46¾; government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, firm. The market closed active and generally strong. The small supply of stock offerings made the bears very uneasy and their buying to cover shorts caused a buoyant rise in prices. Gains in several prominent stocks reached 3 or more. General Electric advanced 5. There were recessions in some stocks at the last.

THE SENIORS' ENTERTAINMENT.

Program of Music and Readings Given by Members of the Class to Students of the School.

Friday afternoon the students of the Rogers High School gathered in the Assembly hall to listen to an entertainment given by members of the Senior class. The four or five entertainments which are given during the year are much enjoyed by the students and are profitable exercises for the boys and girls who take part. The program rendered was as follows: Mark Twain on the Gender of German Nouns," read by Mr. William Reardon; "Les Sylphs," piano duet by Miss Ethel Plummer and Miss Jennie Dring, encore, "Cavalleria Rusticana;" "Thirteen," a farce read by Miss Marguerite Higbee; "Connais-tu le Pays," vocal solo by Miss Marguerite Watson, encore, "Under the Rose;" accompanied by Miss Helen Sullivan; "Death of Paul Dombey," from Dickens's "Dombey and Son," read by Mr. Frank R. Kerr; Fantasia from "Preciosa" by Melur, violin solo by Mr. Allan Langley accompanied by Miss Rosamond Langley—encore, "The Festival in the Village," by Jensen.

The program was enthusiastically received by the audience. The wit and humor of the first two readings and the pathos of the third met appreciative listeners. The musical part was heartily applauded. The second of these entertainments will be held December 17, with a program of readings and music adapted to "Whittier Day."

The following is the committee, composed of members of the Senior class, who arranged the program: Miss Christine Ehrhardt, Miss Helen Sullivan, Miss Marguerite Watson, Mr. Arthur Harrington, chairman, and Mr. Alfred Hall.

A FAST GAME.

Reserves and East Boston Team Do Lively Work.

Home Team Puts Forth Every Effort and Wins Out by Score of 32 to 12.

The mere statement that Corbett of East Boston and Segrue, formerly of this city, played is sufficient to show that there was some lively work, at the armory last evening, in the basket ball line and in several other lines. Basket ball was the game and the Reserves won, 32 to 12, after about as fast and rough playing as will be seen this season. It was rough not because of fouling, but because the heavy players came on fast and made the game something of a football order. There were several times when it looked as though a player was "all in," after one of those football rushes. At the end of the second half the visitors were nearly exhausted, some of them making no attempt at play.

Inadvertently the game was stopped at the end of 15 minutes' play. Even though the game stopped early the spectators had their money's worth and the players about all the rushing, tumbling and wrestling they really needed in one night. They were all ready to quit at any time the whistle blew.

This winter the late train for Boston leaves about 10 minutes earlier than it did last winter, and teams which catch that train, must leave earlier than heretofore. If the game does not begin early the playing time cannot be extended past the time set for starting to catch the train.

The attendance, while not quite as large as on the opening night, was good considering the other attractions. The spectators early became worked up over the rapid play and at times rose to their feet, and some remarks were made which were not exactly sporty. The visitors, with the exception of Segrue, were a solid looking set and when they began to play it was readily seen that they were active as well as strong. It was not thought they could last, but they lasted well and deceived the spectators in this respect.

Corbett played a fast game, but it was clean and those who were at first inclined to watch him closely soon found that he was playing hard but fair. Segrue played an exceedingly fast game for such a light player and frequently eluded Dunn. Hayes played pretty roughly at back in the first half and was nearly out at the end of the second half. Coady and Desmond, big fellows, made a good impression. They worked hard and seemed at times rough, but there was nothing apparently in this except fast work.

From these remarks about the visitors it must be apparent that the Reserves had to hustle to win, and they did. From the start they were very much in the game. The play was so fast that when after 50 seconds Segrue made a unfid foul and when Harvey tossed the ball in for one the crowd seemed as pleased as though it was a goal from the field. Half a minute later Corbett had a chance to count from a foul but failed. At the end of the first five minutes Harvey had scored one field and two foul baskets and Corbett had fallen in two foul tries. Shortly after the visitors made the score 4-3 and things were pretty tense in the minds of the spectators. Then the Reserves cut loose a little and at half time the score was 7-3.

The Reserves forced the play, making short passes and close shots. There was a good deal of holding by the visitors, who were shooting long chance shots for the basket, in the hope of making one count. At the end of 15 minutes' play the score was 12-4, and when the half closed it was 18 to 4. Harvey and McMahon had contributed some hand throws which made the crowd rise with applause and Roche had done great work in the offence. Dunn as usual was a stone wall at back, and while the visitors had credit for 16 missed shots at the basket they were mostly made at such a range that there was little chance of their scoring.

In the second half things were wilder than in the first. The visitors scored more and the Reserves less. Roche did some clever passing which made the spectators feel that the team was all right and up to its old standard. The play was so fast that there was considerable fumbling of passes. The visitors began to tire and there was a good deal of holding of hands. They did not desire to move, and did not mean to let the Reserves move. In the last five minutes of play two baskets were scored, one by each side, and the players were satisfied to hear the whistle blow. The play was so fast that many of the spectators could not believe they had seen 15 minutes of work in this half. The line-up:

Reserves	X-Danvers
Harvey, l. f.,	l. f., Segrue
Roche, r. f.,	r. f., Corbett
McMahon, c.,	c., Desmond
Dunn, l. b.,	l. b., Hayes
Shea, r. b.,	r. b., Coady

Referee—Waters. Score—Reserves 32; X-Danvers 12. Baskets—Harvey 6, Roche 2, McMahon 3, Dunn 2, Shea 1; Corbett 2, Desmond 1, Hayes 2. From fouls—Harvey 4; Corbett 2. Missed foul tries—Harvey 4; Corbett 3. Missed field tries—Reserves 41; X-Danvers 34. Time—20 and 15 minutes.

PORTSMOUTH.

A TALK "ON NATURE STUDY."

Miss Eliza Simmons Speaks to Mothers at Meeting at the Calvert School.

At the mothers' meeting at Calvert School yesterday afternoon Miss Eliza Simmons gave an interesting talk on "Nature Study." Miss Simmons spoke of the analogy between the study of insects, stones and flowers and the study of man, and then spoke of nature study as teaching the child to see, to tell and by telling to gain power. The out-of-door life for the children has a broadening effect and they should therefore look out on the mirror of God Himself.

At the conclusion of Miss Simmons's paper questions were asked and remarks made by Mrs. Stanley C. Hughes, who presided at the meeting. Miss Elizabeth Hammett, principal of Calvert, and Mrs. Felix Peckham. In answer to questions Miss Simmons spoke of her work with classes of young children in nature study and recommended several nature books. Before the meeting adjourned Miss Simmons rendered several piano selections and refreshments were then served.

MRS CAMPBELL'S PERSONALITY.

"Some luck, a lot of hard work, and perhaps, a little talent," is the secret which Mrs. Patrick Campbell gives of her own career. But behind the good luck, the hard work and the talent lies one of the most impelling personalities which has ever given expression to art on the stage. It is a personality which has made her the adored of the upper tiers as well as the pet of the inner social circles of the English capital. There seems to be a certain mystery in this fascinating personality, for no two writers have ever analyzed it quite in the same way.

Mrs. Campbell must be ranked as a genius in art, if one takes the definition that art is suggestion rather than expression. She has never played a role in which her personality has not been completely absorbed to such an extent that no other actress has followed in her footsteps with any hope of success. This is particularly true of the three great modern masterpieces, which Mrs. Campbell is to present during her present rapid tour. "Others have played Mrs. Tanqueray," said Ellen Terry recently; "but Mrs. Campbell is Mrs. Tanqueray." Thus, during the past 14 years, which may be said to be the term of Mrs. Campbell's real stage career, she has been identified with three or four of the only plays England has produced which will live on the stage.

Mrs. Campbell brings to this country her London company, with Ben Webster as leading man and her own daughter, Miss Stella Patrick Campbell, who is to assist as stage manager and make her professional debut in ingenue roles. New York city could have but seven of Mrs. Campbell's performances and Newport may therefore consider itself among the favored that this woman of talent should give it a night.

GROWTH OF MINING INDUSTRY.

In a speech before the Tenth Mining Congress, held at Joplin, Mo., November 11 to 16, the Director of the United States Geological Survey referred to the enormous growth of the mining industry in the United States within the last 28 years which cover the life of the bureau. When the survey was organized the value of the mineral output of the country amounted to about $200,000,000; in 1907 it promises to exceed $2,000,000,000.

In this development the United States Geological Survey has played an important part. A leading mining journal has within a few years stated that in no other country has economic geology been applied to the development of industry with such beneficient results as in the United States and no other geological survey has contributed so much to the practical application of the science of geology to mining operations."

According to the plans of Director Smith the future work of the Geological Survey in its relation to the mining industry includes:

First, the fuller recognition of its duty in the classification of the mineral lands of the public domain.

Second, the rapid extension of systematic field study of all mineral deposits, so that geological exploration may keep in advance of economic development.

Third, the further development of the Survey as a source of authoritative and disinterested information, for the benefit of the prospector or the landowner.

Fourth, the broadening and improvement of the methods of collecting mineral statistics, with the purpose of securing more accurate returns and of expediting their compilation and publication.

Fifth, the investigation of processes relating to the mining and later treatment of fuels, ores, and other mineral products, in so far as such investigation may be fundamental to the best utilization of the nation's mineral wealth.

Sixth, the preparation of reports that will better meet the needs of the mining industry, and the distribution of these publications more promptly and effectually.

ARRESTED IN PAWTUCKET.

Italian Who Disappeared With $500 of Employer's Money to be Held for Larceny.

Friday, November 8, Marco Papa, a young Italian in the employ of Gaspero Amoruso, a barber of this city, disappeared. At the same time the sum of $500, which Amoruso had drawn from the Newport Trust Company during the financial flurry, and which had been in Amoruso's coat, also disappeared. Papa was suspected of having taken it, a note reading "You will never see it again" being found pinned up in the shop after Papa disappeared.

The matter was reported to the police and Inspector Griffith at once went to work to locate the missing man. His efforts were unsuccessful until early this week, when Mrs. Papa left for Pawtucket. Following this clue the inspector located the man in that city and had him arrested. Inspector Griffith went to Pawtucket today and expects to bring his prisoner back this afternoon, when he will be charged with the larceny of the money.

FOUND FLOATING.

Body of William Knott, Deckhand on Barge Annex, Missing Since November 4.

Tug Roger Williams, in coming into port this morning, discovered a body outside the breakwater and the captain notified the Police Station. Captain Champion was requested to go out and tow the body to port, where it was viewed by Medical Examiner Eeroyd. It proved to be that of William Knott, aged 18, a deckhand who disappeared mysteriously from the stern of barge Annex November 4. The step-mother of the young man at Fall River and the captain of the barge at New London, were notified.

FREDERIC SHELDON, ESQ., AN APPRECIATOIN.

Among the many cultivated and interesting men whose lives have been associated with Newport during the last half-century, none have possessed a more rare or winning personality than the late Mr. Frederic Sheldon, or combined more absolutely than he each distinctive charm which may endear a man to the community in which he lives.

Singularly modest and gentle in manner, voice and bearing, he was one, nevertheless, who could not but be prominent in the best sort of social life wherever he chanced to be. From the mere inherent force of a perfectly rounded character, and his opinion, though never "loud in debate," was universally sought and deferred to on every variety of subject by those who wished for a calm and reliable judgment, the result of thought and conscientious belief.

With a wonderful "gift of penetration" in reading character, he had charity for all, and truly may it be said of him that "in his tongue was the law of kindness." His literary gift was far above the average and one felt that only his natural reserve and unwillingness to place himself in the arena of competition and publicity kept him from the prominence he might have held as an essayist in the school of pure philosophic thought of which Emerson was the inspired leader.

As the embodiment of high-bred courtesy and refinement, Mr. Sheldon's presence gave dignity and charm to every circle of which he formed a part and won for him through all the years of his summer life in Newport the universal respect and affection of all who had the privilege of meeting him as acquaintance or knowing him as friend, and who recognized him as belonging to a race and type fast-becoming a memory only, a man worthy to bear "the grand old name of gentleman" and to "wear the white rose of a blameless life."

THE ORPHEUS SOCIETY'S CONCERTS.

The Orpheus Male Singing Society will give its first concert about the middle of December. This society, as the name suggests, is composed entirely of male voices, and is preparing to give some of the best compositions written for male singers. In the concerts it will be the aim of the musical director to produce something which will please all; not too heavy, nor yet so light that it lacks the stamina of real music. The compositions of Bartholdy, Buck, Saint-Saens, and Wagner need no introduction to music lovers. All those interested in such a class of music, if they become subscribers to the Orpheus Society, will have the opportunity of listening to some of the best productions of the above-named composers at the first concert.

The Society has already received a satisfactory patronage from the music lovers of the city. At the same time, now that a date has been decided upon, it is expected that the associate list will increase largely.

THE CHAPMAN MEETINGS.

Colored Churches Formally Invited to Participate, But Each Declined.

In making the preliminary arrangements for the evangelists services which are to be held in this city in February, under the direction of Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, D. D., Rev. E. W. Burch, secretary of the executive committee, sent to the pastors of the Shiloh Baptist, Mt. Olivet Baptist, Mt. Zion African Methodist Episcopal and Union Congregation churches of the city the following letter:

Newport, R. I., November 1, 1907.

My dear Brother Minister: I am addressing this letter to each of the four pastors of colored churches in Newport, at the request of the executive committee of the churches of Newport in charge of the Chapman simultaneous campaign to be held in our city February 27 to March 8, 1908.

The executive committee was organized Thursday evening, October 31, and one of the first resolutions was the following: "Resolved, That we request our colored brethren to unite with us in carrying out Dr. Chapman's plan." This was unanimously carried.

As secretary of this committee it devolves upon me to acquaint the brethren with this action, and to urge upon them our desire that as large and important work as possible be had.

The plan which Mr. E. G. Chapman outlined before us was this. That the colored churches elect their pastors and a lay representative from each church (if this meet with their approval), to determine where their meetings shall be held. Mr. Chapman will furnish a colored evangelist who from time to time assists him in such work as this, and this colored evangelistlist shall conduct the meetings for the united churches. The terms are these: The colored churches shall pay the evangelist's fare from New York and return (this could be by boat), and entertain him in one of their homes. He will also be given a free will offering.

If the colored brethren desire a conference upon this matter, the undersigned will be glad to meet them at any time or place they may designate. At all events, it will be necessary for me to hear from each brother before or by the tenth of November.

With best wishes for the continued prosperity of all the churches of our city,

I remain,
Ernest W. Burch,
Secretary of the executive committee.

Mr. Burch has since received from the pastors of the several churches named, letters stating that they, and their churches did not deem it advisable to enter into the proposed plan at present.
